INVESTIGATION OF OHIO BUC IS SET BY U. S.

Regional Director Announces U. S. Will Examine Department at Columbus.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Jan. 24 — The [illegible] board will conduct a "special survey" of administrative procedures of Ohio's bureau of unemployment compensation as a result of C.I.O. charges of mismanagement, Robert C. Goodwin, U. S. regional director, announced today.

The board's decision, Goodwin said, was based on a preliminary survey conducted by Fred C. Gratz of the Washington bureau.

The board "will send several technicians to Columbus, O., late this month," Goodwin added.

Lee Owens, president of the State Congress of Industrial Organizations, filed charges with the board in Washington alleging H. C. Atkinson, director of the Ohio bureau, last year deprived jobless persons of $14,250,000 through maladministration.

Atkinson termed the charges "deliberately false" and "gross[illegible]."

Goodwin's announcement said the "special survey" resulted from "preliminary conferences" between federal employment security officials, Gov. Bricker, Atkinson and state C.I.O. officials.

"Ohio officials have offered full cooperation in making available for analysis all records in connection with benefit payments," the announcement said.

"The survey will involve examination of the benefit determination made under the Ohio agency's rule 3, which has been in effect since Feb. 23, 1939. This rule provides the method for calculating the weekly benefit payment paid to insured unemployed wage earners."

BUC To Extend Every Cooperation

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—Administrator H. C. Atkinson of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation said today his department would "extend every cooperation" to the social security board during its survey of the state agency.

"We will conduct a joint study to determine on an agreed set of facts," he said. "After that is done, the board and the bureau will be in a position to jointly consider any possible points of disagreement."

REPORT OF DISASTER BLAMED ON RADIO

Dramatized Ship Sinking Story Believed Responsible.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Jan. 24—The possibility that a dramatized radio program based on a ship disaster might have led to the false report of an SOS which sent coast guard vessels scurrying around last night off Cape Cod was considered today by authorities.

Several residents of Martha's Vineyard, where retired Army Captain Byron C. Brown, 48, reported hearing an SOS from a ship supposedly sinking off the cape, said they had listened to a "ship tragedy" at the same time Brown said he heard the distress call.

The retired officer was arrested on drunkenness charges by state police. In district court at Edgartown today he was convicted and his case continued for one week for disposition.

The Coast Guard, when apprised of Brown's arrest shortly after 5 a. m. immediately called off half a dozen vessels searching for signs of the reportedly distressed ship. They had been patrolling the sea between Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket Islands more than eight hours.

FRENCH BLAMED IN FIRE ON SHIP

By The Associated Press

ROME, Jan. 24 — Il Popolo D'Italia, Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, today published a Genoa dispatch blaming the French for the loss of life aboard the Italian liner Orazio because the French navy halted the ship four hours to remove 12 German passengers.

The dispatch called the delay fatal, asserting that otherwise the Orazio "would have been able to reach Barcelona and save all her passengers." The Orazio was enroute to South America via Barcelona.

A checkup on the number of survivors left at least 52 persons unaccounted for today, and Italian sea officials expressed fear the total might reach 100.

NLRB Returns Finding in New England Textile Mill Case.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—The national labor board, acting in behalf of two veteran loom workers in Manchester, N. H., contended today that discriminatory refusal of employers to hire union men was outlawed by the Wagner act as much as discriminatory discharge for union activities.

The board's argument was advanced in a brief in support of Alphonse Charron and Edward G. Geoffroy, who charged that the Waumbec Mills, Inc., in Manchester refused to employ them in July, 1937, because they had served as union leaders.

Workers Win Finding

The two loom workers won a finding from the board that Waumbec Mills now should offer them immediate employment with back pay at substantially the same jobs they would have obtained if hired in July, 1937.

The brief, prepared for filing in the circuit court at Boston to support a petition for an order of enforcement, contends that congress meant "precisely what it said" when it listed in the Wagner act as an unfair labor practice:

"* * * Discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization."

The board's effort to win a court enforcement order is regarded as an important new test of its view that employers cannot discriminate against hiring a worker because he has been a union member.

The circuit court in New York recently upset a board order in a split decision on a similar issue on the National Casket Co. case.

Argues Court Wrong

The New York court action, the board argued in the Waumbec case, was "plainly erroneous." The brief said:

"It is plain that by refusing employment to an applicant because of his membership or activity in a labor organization, the employer is imposing a discriminatory term or condition of employment which discourages union membership. * * *

"A discriminatory denial of employment no less than a discriminatory discharge," the board added, "sounds an open warning to those already employed in the plant that their employer is hostile to union activity and that loss of livelihood may follow upon their disregard of this hostility.

"It is inconceivable that when congress sought in the present (Wagner) act to protect workers in the exercise of the fundamental right of self-organization, it meant to exempt from the operation of the statute the practice which served to make the union blacklist effective, namely the common practice of employers to refuse employment to union members."

British, U. S. Row Over Shipping Same Old Story

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There seems to be much surprise, not unmixed with pain, in the minds of a good many of the general public because Britain is dealing out "discriminatory" treatment to American shipping, searching our mails, and otherwise behaving in such manner as to draw protests from Washington.

Secretary Hull's latest note takes Britain to task on the charge of holding up American ships at Gibraltar an average of more than twelve days. This is said to be over three times as long as required for Italian vessels, which hail from the land of Fascism that professes to have no use for democracy, British or otherwise.

There has been no formal reply yet, but London has explained to the press that United States cargoes take longer for examination because of certain circumstances named.

It's An Old Story

All this sounds mighty like the re-run of a World war phonograph record. Prior to our entrance into the conflict in April, 1917, we were constantly encountering what we regarded as rank violations of our rights by both England and Germany.

Britain and France right at the start swept German shipping from the seas. Allied command of the waters of the earth cut off almost all trade between the United States and Germany and Austria-Hungary. Our commerce increased with the allies, however.

Germany protested, but with no more effect than a voice crying in the desert. In order to make the blockade air-tight, England seized American ships and shipments and arbitrarily extended the list of contraband.

Our protests rolled into London hot from the fire. I was there at the time and had the privilege of knowing our distinguished ambassador, the late Walter Hines Page, and observing his work under trying circumstances.

Mr. Page Was Insistent

Mr. Page's protesting knuckles hammered so often on the British foreign office front door that they must have worn a spot in the oak. But despite the fact that England was fond of Mr. Page, and was praying for America to come into the war, the unyielding descendants of Cedric the Saxon kept doggedly to their course.

In 1916 the British were virtually blockading neutral European ports and capturing American and other shipping as they liked. The desperate Germans resorted to unrestricted U-boat warfare. The following April we got into the fight ourselves.

And the moral of the tale? It is that we of the general public can save ourselves a deal of dangerous nerve-strain if we accept philosophically the frequently demonstrated fact that warring countries rarely are respecters of persons. Nations in a life and death struggle don't stand on ceremony.

Experience indicates that it is more profitable for the public to let the state department handle such cases, and do the necessary worrying.

Support of Relief Levies Urged by City Labor Union

Marion Central Labor Union last night unanimously adopted a resolution urging Marion voters to support the relief and WPA tax levies to be voted on at a special election next Tuesday.

During discussion of the levies, officers and members of the labor group pointed out that relief expenditures can not be curtailed at present and that if the tax levies do not pass it will be necessary for the city to raise the necessary funds by slashing expenditures of the police and fire departments and to issue special relief bonds.

Bonds Called Expensive

Issuing of bonds would be far more expensive to the city in the long run because of interest payments, spokesmen of the group said. Several members also emphasized that curtailment of the police and fire department expenditures would be "dangerous, since both departments are already working with insufficient men and equipment."

It also was pointed out that the total of the two levies is only 2.2 mills, or only seven-tenths of a mill more than the WPA levy which was in effect here until about a year ago.

Four delegates to the central body were seated at the meeting. They are C. A. Bolin and C. F. Gorenflo, both of the moulders union; Glen Swetland of the International Association of Machinists, and C. D. Hartshorn of the Erie lodge of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, all of whom will serve for one-year terms. All of the group, with the exception of Mr. Bolin, served during 1939.

2 1-2 INCH SNOW BLANKETS CITY; MORE COMING

Roads Reported Open in State; Southern States Get 2 to 20 Inches.

Marion and vicinity was blanketed by two and a half inches of snow last night, but the whimsical weatherman served most of his wintry weather for the mid-south where the fall measured anywhere from two to twenty inches. Falling temperatures throughout a great belt of southern states added to the hazards and discomforts of life in Dixie.

More snow flurries and considerably colder weather is the government weather bureau's prediction for tonight. Thursday is forecast as generally fair and continued cold.

Marion's snowfall, accompanied by temperatures ranging from 23 to 17 degrees above zero, added somewhat to traveling difficulties, but not much. All state and county roads were open this morning.

All Clear

The state highway department said conditions were good, with all roads clear except for some snow on the edges. Four plows went out early this morning. In some slippery spots and at intersections and stop-lights sand was strewn on the roads.

The county engineer's office also had four plows working this morning and reported roads in good condition. Dangerous places were sanded.

The Marion sub-station of the state patrol has received word that although snowfall was fairly heavy throughout Ohio, roads are all open. Caution was advised, however.

Street Crew Out Early

About 10 city service department workers, aided by 15 or 20 relief men, were busy clearing snow from the gutters in the city beginning early today. With the gutters clear, the water from the melting snow is easily carried off. The snow cleared from the gutters is hauled away. The workers were also busy placing salt at intersections to ease driving conditions, Safety-Service Director Clyde Caldwell reported.

The snowfall here last night brought to approximately 12 inches the fall so far this month. In January of 1939 there were 12½ inches, which was the highest January total in recent years. The biggest snow in a 24-hour period so far this month was three inches on Jan. 16.

Southern Ice and Snow

The snowfall down south, deepest of a generation in many areas, turned to a coat of paralyzing ice in sub-freezing weather and created hazardous driving conditions.

Ranging from a depth of two to 20 inches, the snow covered an area from southern Georgia westward through mid-Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana to Texas. It extended northward into Tennessee, the Carolinas and Virginia.

Louisiana reported seven deaths from cold weather, Mississippi five.

Schools were closed in many cities and rural areas of Louisiana, north Alabama and Georgia, east Tennessee and Virginia.

Northern Florida shivered in freezing or near-freezing weather and citrus and truck growers further south, prepared for colder weather tomorrow. Tender truck crops were damaged by cold in south Florida earlier in the week.

The temperature drop brought and end to the snowfall in most sections last night. Snow measured 10.3 inches in Atlanta, the deepest in the city's history. Birmingham had an offical 10 inches. A 10-inch fall set an all-time mark at Jackson, Miss.

East Tennessee was beneath the heaviest snow blanket since 1900. The depth ranged from nine to 15 inches. A blizzard-like wind

TRADE PACTS HIT BY POTTERS

"Buy American" Also Urged As Means of Restoring U. S. Business.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—The United States Potters association today elected new officers who opposed reenactment of the reciprocal trade agreements act and advocated a "Buy American" program as a cure of the country's economic ills.

The association named Charles Ray of Paden City, W. Va., as president to succeed Richard Pass of Syracuse, N. Y.

Ben Hardesty of Beaver Falls, Pa., was named first vice president, and R. T. Hall Jr. of East Liverpool, second vice president.

Representative Barton, Republican of New York, at a banquet last night predicted "no president ever would break the third term tradition."

Pass declared in his annual report that the trade program of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull was "fraught with danger" to all American industries and particularly to the potters who, he said, depended upon "adequate" tariff protection.

Barton predicted indirectly the retirement of President Roosevelt upon expiration of his second term next January.

"The third term discussion has arisen repeatedly in our political history," he said. "The office holders in any popular administration are naturally reluctant to leave the payroll and the limelight for the uncertainties and obscurity of private life. They press the argument of indispensability. But when it comes right down to making a decision no president has been willing to break the tradition which has proved its protective wisdom through the years."

Among banquet guests were Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican national committee.

"I don't know who the Republican presidential nominee will be," remarked Hamilton. "I wish I did, then I could win a bet and retire in ease."

Forecast Shows Need of Future Relief Revenue

Following in the record is a series of articles being published by The Star to explain the issues appearing on the special tax levies to be voted on Jan. 30. The levies will provide funds for poor relief and WPA. The articles are based on information furnished by city officials and present their arguments on behalf of the levies.

Although no one can say with certainty what changes in the country's economic condition the next two years will bring, Marion's city officials are expecting the poor relief burden to remain heavy.

The war in Europe may bring jobs for some people in Marion, but not to any great extent for the vast majority of the men and women on the relief and WPA rolls.

In fact, relief officials report that the rolls have been going up in the last few weeks, to some extent because of the stopping of WPA projects by the winter weather.

Basing their figures on past experience, city council is asking the voters of Marion to approve two special tax levies at an election Jan. 30. One levy would be for 1.3 mills, raising about $43,000 each year for two years for poor relief. A 55 per cent favorable vote would be required for approval. The other levy would be .9 of a mill, raising about $30,000 a year for two years for sponsoring WPA projects. This levy requires a 65 per cent favorable vote.

Both levies together total 2.2 mills, which in dollars and cents would mean an extra tax of $2.20 a year on each $1,000 worth of property in the city.

State's Contribution

The $43,000 a year from the relief levy would not alone meet the relief needs, which officials estimate at $75,000 a year. The remainder must come from other sources. If the state continues to allocate funds to cities on the same basis as it has been recently, it will pay 38.4 per cent of the total cost or about $27,000 to the city for 1940. This, together with the $43,000 from the levy, would make $70,000. The remainder could come from other funds of the city. Possibly only $70,000 would be needed, if conditions improve.

The relief case load right now is about 500 cases, representing about 1,500 persons. This is slightly higher than the average for the last six months of 478 cases representing 1,436 persons.

The relief money goes chiefly for food. Each case receives a varying amount each half month, depending upon the size of the family. The client is required to work for his benefit, if he is physically able.

The money also goes for fuel, and for shelter and medical care in extreme cases only.

Small Administrative Cost

Of the total spent for relief, an average of 9.3 per cent is spent on administrative costs. This figure is lower than the average in the state. The legal limit is 12 per cent.

Another part of the relief money is used in sponsoring WPA projects which provide articles or services for the relief clients. This includes the sewing center project and the household aid project.

The $30,000 from the WPA levy would be used solely to sponsor projects. The main project planned for the coming year is a sewer improvement job which would cost the city about $36,000 and the federal government about $100,000. The project already has the approval of WPA officials and would be started not long after Jan. 30 should the levy be passed. It would replace the city street project which is gradually nearing an end, providing work for construction men.

Employment Provision

It is estimated it would employ 300 men for six months or 150 for a year. The city will make it last as long as possible to give longer employment, depending of course upon the demand for jobs.

A few street projects would also be continued, giving employment to possibly 25 men or so. They would be financed from the city's regular street funds.

For non-construction workers, there will be the sewing center project which now employs some 150 women and which undoubtedly will be cut down and the women shifted to other work. The household aid project employing a smaller number of women, will be continued. Both possibly [illegible] be financed with relief funds. 200 MEN LOST ON BRITISH SHIP

Sinking of Destroyer Brings Navy's Toll of Vessels in War to 23.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 24—Sinking of the British destroyer Exmouth by a torpedo or mine in the North sea with the loss of all hands—nearly 200 men—was reported by the admiralty today on the 25th anniversary of the World war battle of Dogger bank.

It was the fifth destroyer and 23rd British naval vessel acknowledged as sunk since the present war with Germany began Sept. 3.

The Exmouth normally carried 175 men, but wartime crews usually are increased about 10 per cent. A 1,475-ton vessel, built in 1934, the Exmouth was a flotilla leader, carrying five 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns, and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The sinking was the first in which not a man was reported saved.

She was the same class as the Grenville, destroyer which sank Saturday with a loss of 51 lives.

Other destroyer losses were the Blanche and Gipsy, which struck mines Nov. 23, and the Duchess, which sank in a collision with another warship Dec. 13.

The Exmouth's commander, Capt. R. S. Benson, received the distinguished service order only last month for "successful action against enemy submarines."

The sinking pushed Britain's acknowledged naval losses past 82,000 tons. Biggest individual sinkings to date have been the 22,500-ton aircraft carrier Courageous, torpedoed Sept. 18 in the English channel; the 29,150-ton battleship Royal Oak, torpedoed Nov. 14 at Scapa Flow; and the 16,697-ton armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi, sunk by a German pocket battleship Nov. 23, near Iceland.

Rep. Smith Assails Housing Board and TVA in House

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Rep. Frederick C. Smith, Republican of Marion, Ohio, charged that the Tennessee valley authority, the U. S. housing administration, and the export-import bank of Washington were operated on Communistic lines.

Asserting in the congressional record that the Dies committee "conspicuously" failed to define communism, Smith said it meant the abolition of private property and its absorption into the community or the state.

"Why is the (Dies) report so silent about the program of the U. S. housing authority, which has under way the abolition of between 20 and 40 billion dollars worth of private property? * * * about the Tennessee valley authority, which is the abolishment of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of private property and its ownership taken over by the federal government?"

C.I.O. Head Charges Democrats Have Broken Faith With Labor.

SEES G. O. P. TREND

Expresses Doubt President Will Try for Reelection.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—John L. Lewis declared today that should the Democratic national convention "be coerced or dragooned" into renominating President Roosevelt "his candidacy would result in ignominious defeat."

Lewis' statement was made impromptu before the United Mine Workers of America convention. He asserted it would be "unwise at this time" to make any presidential endorsements but suggested that the executive board be empowered to take up the matter at the proper time.

The U.M.W. president accused the Democratic party of "failing to keep faith with labor." He expressed belief that President Roosevelt probably would not be a candidate for renomination.

Lewis asserted that in 1936 organized labor furnished money, speakers, party workers and millions of votes to help return the Democratic party to power.

"A political coalition cannot exist a post-election good faith between the coalescent interests," he added.

Faith Not Kept

But, he said, "the Democratic party and its leadership have not preserved its faith.

"In the last three years, labor has not been given representation in the cabinet, nor in the administrative or policy making agencies of government. The current administration has not sought nor seriously entertained the advice or views of labor upon the question of national unemployment, or [illegible] questions affecting domestic economy, internal taxation, foreign trade, military and naval expansion, relations with foreign nations or the issues of war or peace.

"Labor today has no point of contact with the Democratic administration in power except for casual occasional interviews which are granted its individual leaders. In the congress, the unrestrained baiting and defaming of labor by the Democratic majority has become a pastime, never subject to rebuke by the titular or actual leaders of the party."

Lewis asserted that the Democratic party "is in default to the American people" and that labor and the people are losing confidence.

Congress Lacks Program

After asserting that congress was without a program, "except to enact necessary appropriations in ample time to engage in the national quadrennial political marathon," Lewis continued:

"I am one who believes that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for reelection. Conceding that the Democratic national convention could be coerced or dragooned into renominating him, I am convinced that with the conditions now confronting the nation and the dissatisfaction now permeating the minds of the people his candidacy would result in [illegible] defeat."

The C.I.O. chieftain said that Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York were "standing guard" for the Republican nomination in the campaign year of 1940."

He added he [illegible] can be corrected and [illegible] Republican party prevented from winning only by an accord between the Democratic [illegible] and organized labor, and the adoption of an intelligent and [illegible] program to be written into the platform of the Democratic party and placed before the American [illegible] issues of the election [illegible] guarantees of good faith and [illegible] party [illegible] have [illegible] the people by recommendation [illegible] leaders.

Blood Runs Cold

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Mrs. Evans reveals that the man who broke into Christine's room was Kincaid, a former tenant. Christine denies knowing him, as Tim Lathrop, the murdered girl's friend, completely alone and helpless. There must be someone, I thought, that I could get hold of to help me out. Toby was about the only person in New York I knew very well, and of course he was obligingly getting a sunburn in Bermuda. Mr. Taylor, the lawyer who managed my father's estate, had just sailed for Europe. Then suddenly I thought of Dirck Kolff, and my heart skipped a beat. He was Mr. Taylor's partner and Mr. Taylor had told me to consult him if I had any difficulty while he was away. I'd never thought of doing it, never dreaming in the first place that there would be any necessity for it; and in the second—well, Dirck Kolff was the only man I'd ever known who threw me into such a state of confusion when I saw him that I couldn't even remember my name and address.

I had tea with him once in Paris and it took me ten days to recover, and a few scars were still left. He was a Hollander with an accent that melted like honey whenever he opened his mouth. I hung on every word that day at tea, mouth agape, looking, I suppose, like an idiot, because he never took me out again. Mr. Taylor said he hadn't time for girls, but there are twenty-four hours in a day and you can't spend all of them working. Besides, he'd been in Paris for five weeks and it was supposed to be a vacation. He just hadn't been interested, but I thought he might come to my rescue now. A word from him might keep the Sergeant from locking me up. So I decided to call him.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Someone To Help

THE more I thought of it the worse it affected me. And for the first time in my life I felt

The house was quiet when I left the apartment. I had no telephone of my own yet, so I thought I'd go down to the Knife and Fork to call and try out a few more wheat cakes at the same time. The Sergeant, I hoped, had drowned in his own questions. But he was still at large. I could hear his voice when I went down the stairs, because the shop door was open and he was inside with Mr. Kimball. I stopped halfway down, not knowing whether to go on or beat a quick retreat.

"So the lights were out last night. How long?" The Sergeant was at it again.

Mr. Kimball sounded very tired. "From about a quarter to twelve until the man from the electric light company came, shortly after one."

"What caused it?" the Sergeant asked.

"A fuse. The hall lights went out on the first and second floor and in Miss Howarth's apartment."

"But not in your niece's apartment."

"No."

The Sergeant's voice grew louder. "That Christine Howarth knows a lot more than she admits. If she doesn't speak up this afternoon I'm going to arrest her on suspicion."

I sat down fast. My legs failed me again. That big bully was out of his mind. With the whole house full of people to suspect he had to keep concentrating on me. It was time I got a lawyer. By night I'd probably be in jail.

'Sit Tight'

I crept back to the top of the stairs as the Sergeant came out of the shop. The hall was dark, so fortunately he didn't see me or doubtless he'd have arrested me for loitering. He looked about quickly, then went back into the shop and closed the door. So I tiptoed down to the first floor again, let myself out of the house as quietly as possible, and bumped head on into my red-headed friend, Mr. Norton, who was leaning against the front door impeding traffic.

"No one's allowed in or out of here without the Sergeant's permission, Blondie," he chanted.

I ground my teeth. "You might ask the Sergeant if he expects me to starve to death," I said, looking at my watch. "It's a quarter to twelve and I haven't had breakfast yet."

He grinned and stepped into the shop. I could see him talking with the Sergeant and pointing towards me from the shop window. A moment later he came out.

"Where are you going for breakfast?"

"To the Knife and Fork."

"O. K., but no funny business. And come back as soon as you've finished. Sorry I can't go with you," he added with a smile.

I thought it might be better to be nice to him so I smiled back and said I was sorry, too.

The sidewalks were dreadful, ice coated treacherously with a couple of inches of snow. I picked my way to the corner and went into the restaurant. While I was taking off my coat I took a quick look out of the window. No one had followed me, so I sat at the far end of the counter as close as possible to the telephone and where I couldn't be seen from the street. While the boy made me an order of wheat cakes I hunted through the directory for the number of the law office, located a nickel and dialled. It seemed to take hours for the girl to get Dirck Kolff on the phone. Whether the Sergeant would think telephoning was funny business I didn't know, but I was afraid to risk getting caught, and by the time Mr. Kolff answered I was in a frenzy.

And the minute I heard his voice my own went haywire and I babled like a sixteen-year-old. He was very much surprised to hear from me and inquired cheerfully whether I wanted bail, was I just being chatty, or did I need money.

"It's not as funny as you think," I told him. "You may have to bail me out at that. I'm mixed up in a murder and the Sergeant of the Homicide Squad seems to think I did it."

"Did you?"

"No," I shouted, "but I know now what provokes it."

He laughed.

"The Sergeant is going to arrest me this afternoon."

He was impressed at last. "Good Lord," he said, "where are you?"

I gave him the address and begged him to hurry, but my heart touched bottom when he said he couldn't possibly come to the house until sometime during the afternoon. He had to go to court.

"Just sit tight, Chris," he said. I'll be with you the moment I can. I don't believe they'll arrest you immediately."

"Just sit tight, Chris," he said. I'll be with you the moment I can. I don't believe they'll arrest you immediately."

The Shop

With those words of cheer he said goodby and I went back to the wheat cakes. But I was almost impossible to eat. I forced a few mouthfuls and drank a little coffee, one moment thinking confusedly of the murder and the next of Dirck Kolff calling me "Chris."

On my way out I bought two cartoons of cigarettes, preparing for jail or enforced hibernation.

On my return Mr. Norton greeted me cheerily from the front steps. "Enjoy your breakfast?"

"Very much, particularly the wheat cakes."

"What a big appetite you have, Blondie. You don't look it, I must say." He patted my gloved hand. "Mr. Kimball wants a word with you, and I must say I don't blame him."

I took a sidelong glance through the shop window and saw no sign of the Sergeant.

"Nothing to be afraid of," Mr. Norton said impudently. "The Sergeant's not in there."

I held my tongue. By this time I had my fill of arguing with the police. I stepped over the young man's feet and opened the door into the shop.

It was a lovely place, Mr. Kimball's shop. Usually antique stores have a cluttery look, but this one was spacious and well ordered. The walls were lined with books, there were a few choice pieces of early American furniture, some fine brasses and a couple of very old hooked rugs. There was none of the usual claptrap.

Mr. Kimball got up quickly when I came in and asked me to sit down by his desk in the rear of the room.

"I'm terribly sorry you moved in at such a bad time," he said, turning his tired eyes on me. "The Sergeant just told me you want to leave here."

"He gave you the wrong impression," I said. "I want to leave only because he thinks I had something to do with all of this—well—this trouble."

He smiled faintly. "The Sergeant has an unfortunate way about him, I'm afraid." He hesitated, and then leaned back in the chair. "I'm sure he won't arrest you, if that is what's bothering you. And I am hoping he'll settle it very quickly. If I can help you at any time let me know."

He looked so distressed that I begged him not to worry about me.

We were silent for a moment, then Mr. Kimball said, "It's such a shock, Miss Howorth. Joan is my niece, you know. Her mother is my younger sister, my only sister now, the other one died rather young. And naturally I feel responsible about Joan." He shook his head sadly. "Her mother let her come to the city only because I agreed to take the best of care of the child. It will be a frightful shock to her when she and Joan's brother get here this afternoon."

I felt awfully sorry for him. His niece was dead, the house was overrun with detectives and not very agreeable ones at that, and he had to keep the tenants placated.

For a few minutes we talked together, but there was nothing I could do to reassure him, so I left and went upstairs.

The Sergeant was standing in the hall outside of my apartment with a girl. I gathered she was one of the two who lived in the front apartment. They moved down the hall as I reached the top of the stairs and I heard the Sergeant say, "There has been a serious accident here, Miss Wells, and there are a few questions I'll have to ask you."

I couldn't hear any more of the conversation because they went into the room and closed the door.

Tax Valuation in County Set At $54,587,230 in Auditor's Report

The valuation for taxing purposes of real estate and public utility holdings in Marion city and county during 1939 is placed at $54,587,230, a decrease of $80,220 in comparison with the 193 valuation of $54,667,450, in a compilation of taxable properties prepared in the office of County Auditor Harry V. Mounts.

Breakdown of the valuation figures reveals that taxable lands and buildings in the city and county total $42,710,070, an increase of $65,170 over the 1938 figure of $2,644,900. The overall decrease is derived from the decline in the value of utility holdings, listed at $11,877,160 for 1939, which is $145,390 less than the 1938 value of $12,022,550. The decrease is largely due to depreciation of railroad property, officials pointed out.

City Realty Values

Lands and buildings in the city have a value listed at $26,020,990, an increase of $35,580 over the 1938 valuation of $25,985,320. The valuation of utility property in the city is $2,875,740, a decrease of $88,080 in comparison with the 1938 figure of $2,964,720.

County figures follow virtually the same ratio with lands and buildings valued at $16,689,170 for the 1939 taxing period, an increase of $29,590 over the 1938 total of $16,659,580. Values of utility property in the county for 1939 total'ed $9,001,420, a decrease of $58,410 under the 1938 figure of $9,057,830.

Although in past years railroads held the top valuation figures of any public utilities, the Marion-Reserve Power Co. properties have become the most valuable of any utility taxed in Marion county, according to the report. Valuation figures covering the power company's city and county holdings lists a 1939 valuation of $1,882,270.

The county's taxable land is 247,673 acres, virtually the same as in previous reports during recent years.

Revenue Figure

Application of the current tax rates to the county's total valuation of $54,587,230 fixes at $915,312.73, the amount of tax revenue to be received. The rates are based on needs of the subdivisions set-up in budgets submitted to and approved recently by the county budget commission.

The revenue includes these amounts for various subdivisions, $218,785.82 for the city and villages, $152,846.88 for the county, $30,853.11 for the townships, and special assessments of $395,119.71 for roads and ditches, $10,760.98 for township roads and $53,266.44 for pavings.

With $915,312.73 as the current tax charge funds due the county are increased by delinquent real estate assessments amounting to $204,155.50. This brings to $1,199,468.23 the total charge, or amount due the county for current and back taxes. Of the 1939 delinquencies, $148,582.75 constitutes assessments on city real estate and the remaining $54,572.75 is against county property.

Delinquencies in the previous year totaled $368,575.84, of which $268,929.48 was on city property and the remaining $99,646.36 on rural land. The decrease in delinquent taxes is attributed to recent forfeited land sales, according to officials.

Village Valuations

Total valuation of real estate and utility holdings in Marion county villages, with similar figures for the preceding year following in parentheses, are:

Caledonia, $309,720, ($312,170); Green Camp, $167,930, ($167,320); LaRue, $424,450, ($425,840); Agosta, $86,530, ($80,460); Prospect, $671,100, ($673,740); Morral, $448,990, ($456,690); Waldo, $272,310, ($281,080). Substantial increase in valuations listed for Waldo and Agosta are attributed to new lines and equipment of the Ohio Power Co., and other decreases are the result of the reduction in railroad valuations, officials reported.

266 Pair for 16 Weeks

A total of 266 claimants received their maximum 16 weeks' benefits during the year, according to Mr. Scherff's report. A total of 743 claimants received one or more benefit checks but had not received their maximum, their benefit year not having expired at the close of 1939.

The center found 1,553 jobs in private industry for Marion county workers during the year, the report shows, and a total of 1,690 job placements were made. Regular placements in private industry, those lasting more than one month, totaled 763. Jobs in public employment numbered 137 and supplemental placements, in which the participation of the center was limited, totaled 199.

During 1939 a total of 1,932 new applicants who had never before sought employment through the Marion office, registered for work, according to Mr. Scherff's report. Persons actively seeking work, as indicated by the files at the center, numbered 2,381 on Dec. 31.

1,663 Visits

Members of the staff made 1,663 visits to employers during 1939 to further the personnel selection service offered by the center, solicit job openings and determine job specifications. Visits by employers, job seekers, benefit claimants and others to the center during the year numbered 44,012.

Total benefits paid to unemployed and partially unemployed workers throughout the state amounted to $23,687,439, and job placements in private industry totaled 128,932 throughout the state, according to figures received by Mr. Scherff's office.

NEW FRONT BEGUN ON MAIN ST. STORE

Work Started at G. R. Kinney Shoe Company Room.

Work was started yesterday on a new modernistic front for the G. R. Kinney Shoe Co. store at 117 South Main street.

The front, which will be predominantly red trimmed with stainless steel, is expected to be completed by Feb. 10. Local labor and material are being used as far as possible. W. Daum of New York, company architect, reported. Mr. Daum will be here during the start of the work.

The front will be of "sawtooth" design with the doorway recessed about 16 feet from the sidewalk. Windows will be attractively floored.

The interior, which was recently redecorated, will be further improved in keeping with the modern front. New light fixtures, show case and wrapping table are planned, D. E. Pettit of 247 Windsor street, the manager, reported.

A new sign will also be erected flush against the building. It will be larger than the old sign.

Chicago Woman Editor Is Heard by Altrusa Club

BELIEF in its cause and a knowledge of the purpose and work of the organization are important qualifications in furthering the cause of Altrusa, Mrs Ruth Lemmer of Chicago, editor of the International Altrusan, official publication of Altrusa Clubs, Inc, told members of the Altrusa club last evening. Miss Lemmer was the guest speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the club in the ballroom at Hotel Harding. Her subject was "Interpreting Altrusa" Completing the program were two groups of delightful vocal numbers by Mrs. Ruth Miller Akers and Miss Gertrude Miller of Akron. Their accompaniments were played by Mrs Paul Bish of Marion.

Gladiola, roses and greenery decorated the table and favors were miniatures of the cover of the January issue of the International Altrusan. Miss Ruth Kramer presided.

In order to interpret Altrusa in the community, the organization must be known as a sincere and purposeful group, taking an interest in youth and community activities, Miss Lemmer told the members. She urged the members to be ready at all times to assist in civic projects and to be ready, both as a club and individuals, to promote the cause of Altrusa in the community She stressed vigilance in carrying out Altrusa's policy of vocational guidance for girls and women in daily contacts. She gave a brief sketch of the Altrusan office in Chicago and her work as editor.

The musical part of the program included "In My Garden," "Oh, Lovely Night" "The Old Refrain," "Serenade," "Eventide," "Little Star of the Horizon" and "Lullaby." At the close of the dinner Miss Kramer was presented a birthday cake in honor of her anniversary. Later Miss Kramer kept open house to the club members at her home on Vernon Heights boulevard for the pleasure of Miss Lemmer, Mrs Akers and Miss Miller.

Veritzen Anxious To Find Princess Olina To Reveal His "News".

AS LILLIAN went toward the advancing figure of Philip Veritzen, I mentally saluted—not for the first time—her perspicacity and her resourcefulness She knew that Olina was in my room, for from her vantage point in the hall she must have witnessed the tempestuous entrance of the young princess, and she must have deduced the tumultuous feelings of this girl. She was also conversant with my position regarding Olina's request for a role in my play. So, with all the threads in her hands, she was doing the young princess the only service possible at the moment, delaying her meeting with Philip Veritzen until she should have time to pull herself together and greet her prospective stepfather in a manner which would not wound his vanity.

"My dear Lillian!" His deep resonant voice came clearly to our ears through the open door. "How delightful to see you! And can you tell me where I can find the Princess Olina? Her mother does not know just where she is, though she says she must be around the house somewhere."

Lillian Delays Veritzen

I knew that Lillian would make her answer as long as possible, and I stepped to the side of the Princess Olina, who was standing rigid like a frozen thing, with every muscle tense, and put a compelling hand upon her arm.

"Don't spoil everything," I adjured her. "Mrs. Underwood is delaying him—I know her tactics—so that you can be prepared for meeting him Relax, child, and prepare to greet him in such fashion that he will not be chilled and replaced by your attitude He evidently is in a most exuberant and kindly mood, and is searching for you—very properly—to tell you his news first. For the sake of your mother's happiness, and your own, pretend cheerfulness even if you cannot feel it."

She may have heard all that I had said, but she picked only one sentence for comment.

"To tell me his news first," she repeated "Then it is true, you think She has accepted him"

Heritage Comes to Fore

A shudder ran over her, and I saw her fingers clench into her palms.

I slipped my hands up to her shoulders and gripped them firmly, for I saw incipient hysteria in her eyes. Then I struck the one chord which I was sure would move her.

"Remember!" I said sternly. "You may be in exile, but you are still a princess of Transvania. Are you going to meet this news like a gracious princess, or like a whining peasant schoolgirl?"

For the fraction of a second, the scales might have tipped either way. Then her heritage and her training turned the trick, and her figure lost its rigidity, her eyes their hysteria.

"Thank you," she said quietly, and there was sincerity in the words. "I shall not forget again. If I can have one more minute, I shall be ready to face anything"

"You shall have that," I told her, and going out of the room quickly, closed the door behind me. Subconsciously, while I was talking to Olina, I had heard Lillian telling Phil mendaciously that she did not know exactly where Olina was, but that she must be around somewhere Then Mr. Veritzen spied me, and at his smile of recognition I moved swiftly toward him.

Past Recalled

"What a pleasant surprise!" I exclaimed, and then Lillian's voice with a touch of displeasure in it, recalled the pact I had made with her to pretend slumber in order to beat out the stipulation I had made to him, that because of excessive fatigue I would not be able to attend the rehearsal of my play until the next day.

"I thought you were asleep with orders that you should not be disturbed," she said. "You have no business being out of bed. You have no idea how done out she is," she added, turning to Mr. Veritzen with a confidential air

I figured that the minute's grace I had given Olina must be nearly up, and I gave Lillian an apologetic smile.

"But Olina didn't know that" I said, "and she came to my room a few minutes ago to discuss something very important to her and to me. So you see I had to awaken"

"So that is where she is," Lillian answered, playing up instantly "If I had known, Phil, I could have told you before"

"It really doesn't matter in the least," he assured her with elaborate courtesy "But," turning to me, "is it possible for me to see her now?"

DELAWARE ASKS FOR SCHOOL BUS RULING

Question Raised About Patrol's Instruction to Drivers.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Jan. 24—Delaware school authorities yesterday requested a ruling from Col. Lynn Black, head of the state highway patrol, concerning the discharging of school children from buses.

Supt. D. R. Smith said that in December the state patrol notified drivers of buses for the city schools that their regular practice of discharging pupils from buses at the side of the road opposite their home and then waiting for the pupils to cross the road before driving on was contrary to instructions.

The drivers were told that this procedure delayed traffic during that time and, in accordance with instructions, drivers changed their practice and have since been driving away immediately after the pupils have left the bus, according to the superintendent.

Superintendent Smith said that parents of the rural pupils have objected to this change of practice and have repeatedly registered complaints at his office.

A ruling from Col. Black is expected within a few days, Superintendent Black said.

FACES DELAWARE CO. JURY

DELAWARE, O., Jan. 24 — Verne Hogans, 19, of south of Delaware, yesterday was bound over to the Delaware county grand jury on a charge of assault. Hogans entered a plea of not guilty when he was arraigned before Mayor Paul B. White on charges filed by Miss Irma Mendenhall, also of south of Delaware. Bond was set at $100 and he was remanded to the Delaware county jail.

The funeral will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Phillips funeral home in Mt. Gilead.

DEADLINE NEARS FOR 1940 DOG LICENSES

Only three days remain during which Marion city and county dog owners may purchase 1940 registrations before the assessment of an added penalty, County Auditor Harry V. Mounts warned today as he called attention to Saturday's deadline for obtaining the tags.

The auditor's office will be open from 8 a. m. until 4 p. m. each day this week for the convenience of dog owners. The sale was to have officially closed last Saturday but the deadline was extended one week because of the inclement weather.

Up to this morning 4,080 tags had been issued, 550 less than the number sold during the registration period last year. A total of 5,708 registrations were granted in 1939, many of them being subject to the added penalty of $1 per tag when they were not obtained before the deadline.

DELAWARE CO. CASES BEFORE OHIO COURT

The Ohio supreme court acted on two Delaware county cases today, The Associated Press reported from Columbus.

It affirmed the judgment of the lower court in a case involving the estate of Ida B. Fulk, Okey C. Fulk and others, appellants, against John W. Fulk, administrator, appellee.

The court ruled three times on the suit of William McKenzie, appellant, against Mary Margaret Neville and others, appellees. It dismissed the case on the ground that no debatable constitutional questions were involved, overruled a motion to certify the record and sustained a motion of the appellees to dismiss the appeal as of right.

MARION MAN FINED FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Fred Haberman III, 29, of 478 South Main street was fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge Hazen yesterday afternoon when he changed a previous plea of not guilty to a plea of guilty in connection with a drunken driving charge filed Jan. 14.

Judge Hazen suspended his driving rights for six months.

Awards Well Placed

SELECTIONS for this year's Junior Chamber of Commerce awards for outstanding civic service are certain to meet with general public approval.

Probate Judge Oscar Gast as head of the juvenile court department of his office has performed exceptionally meritorious work in directing young people in the right path and in remedying conditions which threatened their future. In presentation of the plaque which goes to some citizen each year for outstanding service, the speaker mentioned that in looking after the welfare of juveniles, Judge Gast has gone "far beyond the regular duties of his office." That marks him as an unusually conscientious public official and assuredly entitles him to the recognition symbolized by the service plaque.

Coach William Williams—or rather let's make it "Bill" so that his popularity may be suitably emphasized—directed and supervised the Harding High School football team of last season. That, a preponderance of public opinion would assert, entitled him to the Junior Chamber of Commerce key which goes to some younger man each year for outstanding community achievement. For as everybody in Marion and a great many people elsewhere know, his team won the North Central Ohio Scholastic championship and more notably went on record as first unbeaten high school football team in Marion's history.

But this was not all that was marked up to Coach Williams' credit. The recognition was also for his good influence on the young people of the community. All of which should eliminate every possibility of any dissenting voice in the general indorsement of Mr. Williams' selection for this honor award.

Both selections bring to mind an important fact. It is that virtually every person, and especially those who occupy positions which have some relation to the interests and welfare of all or a considerable part of the community, can win the right to public recognition and gratitude simply by doing a good job where they are. By "good," we mean of course, above the average, as the average is not sufficient for either individual or community success With more people "going beyond" their regular duties Marion will move ahead at the same pace

London Loses A Balloon

INTERNATIONAL experts called it "one of the most important speeches made by a British statesman since the war began" when Winston Churchill appealed to neutrals to join up with the allies in putting down Nazi-Soviet aggression

They must have been right. The speech was made last Saturday night. On Sunday the neutrals began to register peppery objections By Monday a "spokesman" for the British government was explaining that the first lord of the admiralty had not announced a government policy. He was just expressing one man's opinion.

This looks like one of those cases where a trial balloon is lofted to see which way the wind is blowing. If the wind isn't blowing the way that's favorable, the balloon is checked off as an experimental loss. Mr. Churchill's appeal to neutrals to join the allies wasn't received kindly.

What this means is anyone's guess It's just one more of the minor mysteries of the puzzling things going on in Europe. Those who have been talking about European union so hopefully will have to make the most of it.

No Magic in Reorganization

STOCK catchword of a long succession of chief executives wanting to increase government efficiency has been reorganization But there's no magic in reorganization.

It may or may not increase efficiency It may or may not decrease costs and payroll As to the latter, Budget Director Smith recently pointed out that federal agencies reorganized by the Roosevelt administration last summer dropped 5,006 employes of the payroll in three months.

But don't cheer. From July 31 to Nov. 1, also according to the budget director, the total civilian personnel of government jumped from 927,887 to 937,357—a net increase of 9,470 For every jobholder pried lobse, 189 jobholders grabbed on

It Must Pay

THE Coster-Musica scandal, breaking over the financial structure of McKesson & Robbins Inc., was looked upon at the time as a threat to popular confidence in the firm's product It is interesting to learn, therefore, that 1939 is now seen as the company's best year. Business increased.

The financial scandal, as was understood at the time, did not affect the company's products. What it did do was to establish firmly in the buying consciousness of thousands of drug store customers the name of a particular drug manufacturer.

As the fellow said to the reporter: "I don't care what you say about me in your story, bud, if you spell my name right."

News Behind the News

Hull Reported Angry but Virtually Helpless About Seizures of Mail.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan 24—Mr. Hull has been out-argued by the British on the mail seizure issue—but not convinced. He has been scowling into his desk ashtray, and barking about doing something, but nothing important will be done.

Inescapable fact is the mail differences between Washington and London have been over-interpreted by some outsiders to indicate serious disturbance in friendly Anglo-American relations. State department was annoyed by these interpretations and one official said no more news on the mail issue could be put out until this unwarranted excitement quieted down

Paul Mallon

The truth too is that the latest British note caused considerable embarrassment among United States diplomats by reciting from an American note in 1916 to the effect that "the class of mail matter which includes stocks, bonds, coupons and similar securities is to be regarded as of the same nature as merchandise." This unfortunate United States position of May 24, 1916, was assumed under the pro-British influence of American Ambassador Walter Hines Page, but Mr. Hull cannot point that out now in diplomatic correspondence.

All he can do is fume and fret. In short, the British have put a crimp in his argument but not in his temper.

Suspicious

Mr. Hull and his assistant secretary of state, Adolf A. Berle, have never tracked along blindly with their boss in the White House on the theory that the British can do very little wrong. Berle has been almost consistently suspicious of Britain, her motives and her plans, almost equally with his distrust and dislike of Germany and her actions. In fact, Berle just about belongs to the "they're all a bunch of so-and-so's" school of thought with regard to the European crowd, and Hull, while he is fanatically convinced of the necessity for maintaining normal trade, does not think much more of the British than he does of some of the others.

Mail Threat

Later on the state secretary may carry out his threat to eliminate Bermuda from the trans-Atlantic mail service. Pan-American Airways, officials of the line, have made application to the civil aeronautics authority here to eliminate either the Azores or Bermuda stop, when they get their new big ships capable of longer hops.

The controversy is apt to be characterized from now on by such actions as these—gestures which will not cut deep.

Preparedness

This government's war authorities gave some surprising confidential testimony on the nation's industrial preparedness for war. It was scratched out of the senate appropriations committee's hearings before these were published.

They said the popular notion that an "M day" would find this country turned immediately into war production was unwarranted. Their confidential estimate was that 48 hours to 18 months would be required for the government to coordinate and perfect the manufacturing of airplanes and war necessities

Waterway

Word dripped out of the Canadian commission conferences on St Lawrence Waterway here that the entire new treaty was in shape before the conference had started except for agreement on complicated engineering data The promise in this spot a week ago that the treaty would be dispatched to the senate within a month still holds good.

Propaganda for the treaty will be handled to stress the point that it is an entirely new document, although much of it is based on the former treaty which the senate failed to ratify.

Borah's Last Wish

Just a day before he was stricken, Senator Borah said in a conference with a friend he was interested in promoting only one thing more immediately—a platform at the next Republican national convention that would take a determined stand for Americanism He thought the most important thing the Republican party could do was to resist the tendency of some of the New Dealers to edge closer and closer toward the European war and the peace that will eventually come out of it.

Saddened

Borah died as a man saddened at the state of the world. In this same conference he lamented the prevalent popularity of hate in international intercourse. He remarked how all nations, even those not at war, were conducting their diplomacy on grounds of hate When the hearer interrupted to observe that the American people seem to be less prone to follow the popular world way than other peoples, he interposed that he was not so sure. The roots of some hatreds had been planted here, he said, and he feared to what height they might grow under cultivation.

Key To Recovery

That's How Economists Regard New Investments.

IN its annual business review edition, published recently, The New York Sun finds significant agreement among 32 economists who contributed articles that something must be done about new capital investment in the United States.

Outstanding event of 1939 in this connection, says The Sun in its analysis of the economists' opinions, was the bursting of the myth that the "planned economy of government could hoist this republic out of depression and lead it on to greater glory."

With pump priming discredited, with other "shams and errors of politicians exposed," with a more independent congress asserting the people's will, with a war boom in the final months, business improved in 1939, says The Sun. Production, it concludes, is the key to further recovery.

"On the banner of business is 'Production'—and more Production.' All the blueprints of the bureaucrats do not produce one automobile or one silk stocking."

In 1940, says The Sun, business "can make the supreme effort to overcome the result of the New Deal's failure" to substitute planned economy for natural production "If no effort is made this year the framework of American economy will be further weakened, the state will grasp more power."

FOUR planks of a business platform for 1940 are proposed in the newspaper's study of the conclusions drawn by economists about the things that need to be done. These are:

1—Business should fulfill a pledge to the people that there shall be "no more meddling with the country's political economy by the magicians, no more draining of its resources by the wastrels." It should use its voice to inform the people continually on the "fake planning that clutters the path."

2—Business should devise a "platform that will bring new vitality to the nation's economic system The platform should rest firmly on the bedrock of an impressive truth It is that no limit is visible in the needs and desires of the American people for goods and service."

3—Business would do well "to enlist the public and labor, where labor can act free of coercion from boards and union bosses—to enlist them in backing congress in the months ahead in all efforts to clear away the wreckage of plans that collapsed, and remodel what remains."

4—Finally, the "course that business follows should be smoothed by the common sense teamwork of industries, trades and agriculture through their trade associations and farmers' organizations."

FRED ROGERS FAIRCHILD, Knox professor of political economy, Yale university, one of the contributors to The Sun's symposium on business, describes the capital investment problem in this way:—

"There has been a widespread and persistent notion among the American public, especially about the time of the crisis of 1929 and in the early years of the succeeding depression, that the consumption goods industries were the key to the problem of depression Cessation of consumer demand was regarded as the origin of the depression. By the same token the remedy was to be found in measures to stimulate the purchase of consumption goods by the consumers . . .

"The truth is on the whole, just the reverse Depressions are not normally started by a decline in consumers demand. Why should the consumers reduce their purchases unless something has occurred to curtail their incomes and so their buying power? Nor is the remedy for depression to be found in artificial measures to stimulate purchasing of consumption goods Pump priming public works, preaching the gospel of spending instead of saving—these and other such devices may have a temporary effect of stimulating production But the result is measured only by the stimulus. When that is withdrawn, there remains no motive power to continue business revival

"Actually it is the capital goods industries that furnish the key to the problem It is their decline that—both in theory and as a matter of historical fact—starts the depression. And it is their renewed activity after the depression that is the first active influence leading to revival. The sound remedies for economic depression are those that arouse in the minds of businessmen and investors renewed hope of the possibility of profitable business."

Today and Tomorrow

Tracing the Circumstances Which Helped Borah Maintain Independence.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE tributes which have been paid to Senator Borah by those who differed with him on many issues are unanimous in recognizing that here was a man whose personal greatness cannot be measured by his public career. None who knew him could fail to see that Borah was something more than what Borah did, and to this Borah who transcended his acts men everywhere in the nation have said a reverent and affectionate farewell.

Lippmann

The quality of greatness is intangible and hard to define; it must be felt and recognized. But when this quality is present, as it was in Borah, the issues on which men differ deeply do not divide them irreconcilably. So when Borah spoke, the level of the debate would rise at once from the murk of mean contention to the cleaner air of important argument For it is one of the attributes of greatness to see the issues and to fix them at the level of the enduring truths and the nobler motives which ought to, though usually they do not, control our opinions It was this magnanimity in Borah that enabled him to fight his battles without inflicting on others envenomed wounds or upon himself the poison of a malicious ambition to prevail

Like Clay and Webster

Thus he is one of those who, like Dr. Samuel Johnson in the history of English letters, are greater than their works He will long be remembered, and he will be the subject of many biographies, and always the question will be asked why this man, who stood out in his generation with the evident style and attributes of greatness, should have achieved so much less than men of smaller stature and lesser caliber That same question has often been asked about Henry Clay and about Daniel Webster, and it will be asked again and again about Borah.

In the case of Borah the answer may be found, it seems to me, in a peculiarity of our political practice, in the peculiar fact that Borah could spend his whole life in public affairs without ever having to shoulder the burden of executive responsibility and administrative decision. Borah was never the mayor of a city, the governor of a state, or a member of the cabinet. And so while he dealt with government, he never himself governed. He led a sheltered political life This gave him a fine independence of thought and speech. It enabled him to maintain intact a conspicuous virtue. But it insulated and isolated him from that experience of the hard realities, where ideas have to be translated into acts, in which great men learn to be great statesmen

Saddening Period

The latter years of his public life were, it seemed to me, saddened by the realization, which he could not conceal from himself, that the world was not the kind of place he had hoped and imagined it to be. Borah was an isolationist from Europe; but what made him an isolationist in 1919, after he had advocated participation in the war, was a deep feeling of moral outrage against the betrayals and injustices of the Treaty of Versailles. Borah was not an isolationist in the sense that he was indifferent to moral issues in the rest of the world He hated tyranny and evil as Americans of the great tradition have always hated it; he was an isolationist out of the generosity of his spirit, because he loved liberty and believed, as Archibald Macleish has so eloquently put it, that America is a promise to the people and that "when the time came they would speak and the rest would listen."

To this mystic chord in Borah those who have breathed the American air responded, and that is why his limitations as a statesman do not obscure his great qualities as a man

Uncle Ben Is Loose Again; This Time He's Found Guilty on Two Counts—Assault and Heroism.

By DAMON RUNYON

Mr. Joe Turp Writes From Brooklyn:

DEAR SIR. When I got home from work last night I ses to my wife Ethel hay have you heard from your Uncle Ben late Ethel ses no but it was not his fault. I ses was not his fault? She ses whatever it was has done

I ses O you know about it hay? She ses Joe I do not know about anything but it was not his fault. I ses now wait a minute Ethel I ses when I asked you if you had heard from your Uncle Ben lately right away you no but it was not his fault and then when asked you if you know about it you ses no you do not know about anything but it still was his fault. I ses what kind of talk is that?

Ethel ses well Joe whenever you come home and ask me if I have heard from my Uncle Ben in that tone of voice I know he has done something that you are going to criticize me I know that whatever it was it was not Uncle Ben's fault. He is sometimes a little thoughtless Joe but nothing he does is really his fault You must remember Joe he suffered terribly in the war.

I ses look Ethel. I ses the war was over before you were born and when I was just a little kid and I guess if your Uncle Ben did any suffering in it he has recovered long ago I ses have heard that all that happened to him in the war was that he got fat and made plenty money shooting craps with the other soldiers I ses I have heard he got in a lot of trouble because he was using a certain kind of dice

ETHEL ses well that was not his fault either Joe He explained about it to me a long time ago but I have forgotten just how it was except that it was not his fault. I think it was because he had already started to suffer terribly from the war But why did you ask me if I had heard from my Uncle Ben late Was it about Ivan?

I ses what Ivan? I ses do you mean by the bartender? Ethel ses yes that is the one I ses what about him Ethel? I ses don't tell me your Uncle Ben had trouble with Ivan Ethel ses O no Joe there was no trouble Uncle Ben just wrestled him Ivan's collarbone got broken but it was not Uncle Ben's fault I ses well this is a new one on me.

She ses well Joe my Uncle Ben is very much about Russia for jumping on Finland so one night about a week ago he was out looking for Russians and found Ivan. I ses wait a minute Ethel I ses what do you mean he was looking for Russians and found Ivan. I ses Ivan is no Russian. I ses you know very well he was born and raised in this neighborhood.

ETHEL ses that's right Joe but Uncle Ben could not find any real Russians and Ivan has a Russian name so my Uncle Ben thought he would do. My Uncle Ben asked Ivan to fight him with his fists but Ivan ses he did not know how to fight that way and that anyhow he did not want to fight so my Uncle Ben took hold of him and wrestled him and they fell down and Ivan's collarbone got broken. But it was not my Uncle Ben's fault because he did not know Ivan was going to fall down some such

I ses well Ethel that is the worst thing ever heard of I ses Ivan is an old friend of mine and of yours too and probably your Uncle Ben had been drinking something and that is why Ivan did not want to fight him or wrestle him either and it is a shame he got hurt. I ses I am surprised that a fellow like your Uncle Ben can be a disgrace one minute and a hero the next

Ethel ses what do you mean by that? I ses well the reason I asked you if you had heard from your Uncle Ben lately was because I thought he would have been over here by now telling you about how he jumped down in the subway at Borough Hall station last night and pulled a fellow off the tracks from right in front of a train and saved his life.

ETHEL ses what kind of a looking fellow was he Joe? I ses how do I know Ethel I ses maybe he was a handsome fellow and maybe he was uglier than the dickens but what difference does it make? Ethel ses O did not mean that way Joe? I mean did he look as if he might have some money? I ses Ethel I don't know because I did not see him but that is a fine question to ask. I ses who cares if he had any money?

Ethel ses well Uncle Ben is liable to catch it I only hope the fellow can pay him a nice reward for saving his life Joe because Ivan is around looking for Uncle Ben with his arm in a sling He is telling everybody that Uncle Ben will either have to settle with him for breaking his collarbone or go to jail for it Ivan wants $500 Do you think that fellow's life was worth that much to him Joe?

I ses Ethel is money all you can talk about when I come home and tell you your Uncle Ben is a hero" She ses O I am glad to hear it Joe but I am worried about keeping Uncle Ben out of jail He would not like to be a hero in jail

Yours truly,
JOE TURP

Youngest Mayor

WHITESBURG, Ky.—At 23, and after 3 years as "the youngest mayor in the United States," Bill—just plain Bill—Collins administrator "reluctantly" that politics is a pretty grave undertaking for a young man.

"There have been many occasions since my tenure of office that I should have welcomed a few more years of experience," he says

Mayor Bill, who clings to his nickname on the city's official stationery and in the records of his office, was elected November 7, 1937, when he was 21 He defeated his former school teacher, 50 years his senior.

He's rather proud of his claim of "youngest mayor" honors and of the "pioneering stock" from which came many of the 1,800 residents of this county seat town in the southeastern Kentucky mountain country.

Bill has a lot of definite ideas about running Whitesburg's government. Basically, however he works on the theory that "a true democracy must start down at the people's level if it is expected to thrive throughout an entire nation."

"In other words," he continues, "I believe the old slogan that a house is only as strong as its foundation. If America is to make itself safe for Americans it must begin its work in each town or village."

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Zealous Ohio abolitionists bitterly attacked the nine-months-old Lincoln administration when Rev. George Gordon, president of Iberia college in Morrow county, was convicted of violating the fugitive slave law.

The trial created tense excitement throughout the north. Denouncing the verdict as an odious act by the government to suppress their activities, abolitionist leaders took the matter directly to President Lincoln.

Lincoln studied the federal district court record in vain to discover any illegality in the verdict. Being a shrewd politician, however, Lincoln issued a presidential pardon for Rev. Gordon. This satisfied the most avid of the Ohio abolitionists.

CRESTLINE AND MARION GAMES ON ST. MARY CAGE CARD

Parochials Set for Friday Contest; To Meet Columbus Team Saturday.

Marion St. Mary basketball combines will be in action three consecutive nights, starting with the junior high program tomorrow night on the Vernon Heights court. Most important to the upper classmen, however, are contests booked on succeeding evenings.

The Saint varsity will participate in the observance of "league" night Friday at Crestline when all four members of the League of Six Nations will show their wares on the same court. St. Mary will meet Tiffin Calvert in the opener, while Fostoria St. Wendelin furnishes the opposition for the host school in the second duel.

Coach Bernard Berens will bring his varsity quintet to the home court Saturday night to entertain the strong Columbus Aquinas team. In the only game they'll be called on to play all week, the Saints' reserve squad will face the Aquinas seconds in Saturday's prelim. The varsity enters this week's competition with a record of 10 victories and three losses.

Marion May Advance

Friday's "league" session may bring a change in the standings likely to be favorable to the locals. Marion's competition isn't expected to be exceptionally tough since the Calvert crew has failed to cop any of three league starts. The front-running Crestline dribblers face a St. Wendelin club which has won one of three loop games, but the hosts should have a distinct edge, particularly since the game is on their home lot.

St. Mary's victory over Forest Saturday night was just one of the many games throughout Ohio last week which brought the first taste of defeat to previously unbeaten clubs. Nine Ohio clubs which had compiled enviable winning streaks suffered their first setbacks including Forest, Wharton, Spring Valley, Clarksburg, Sciotoville, Castalia Margaretta, Celina Immaculate Conception, Lockland and Osborn Bath.

Other Marks Broken

As those teams succumbed, two others broke eight-game loding streaks, Akron West downing Elyria, 35-18, and Newton Falls, whipping Brookfield, 36-30. North Canton, state class B champ, rolled to its 11 consecutive conquest and Akron North, class A king, notched its ninth win in 11 starts.

Middletown and Cincinnati Woodward emerged with the class A leadership each boasting 11 straight wins, while Lynchburg of Highland county held class B laurels with 10 in a row. New Philadelphia hung on the heels of the pacemakers with 10 wins, while Canton McKinley, Mt. Vernon and Bellefontaine, have nine each.

Two-Ton Tony To Meet Maxie Baer in Philly Scrap

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24—Joseph (Yussel) Jacobs, manager of "Two-ton" Tony Galento and currently in hot water with the New York boxing commission, gave the nod to Philadelphia today as his choice for the Galento-Max Baer fight Easter week.

"I like Philly for this fight," the Yussel explained. "Allus I say this town's good to us. I'd rather see it here than elsewhere."

And having produced the Easter bunny, Jacobs pulled another present out of the hat with the announcement that Tony, if successful in polishing off "Dat Bum" Maxie, would meet heavyweight champion Joe Louis here in June.

Jacob explained his trouble with the New York commission—which won't grant him a manager's and second's license—is because of "vengeance in the heart" of Commissioner Bill Brown.

Henry Favored Over Montanez Tonigl

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — Mike Jacobs, mayor of Broadway's Milltville, usually can promote a prize fight without being bothered by a nervous breakdown, but for the past 24 hours he has been as shaky as a hula dancer.

—All on account of Henry Armstrong.

Henry, with only a single crown left of the three he once had balanced on his head, will battle Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden tonight in a 15-round defense of his welterweight title—if something doesn't happen to him beforehand.

The little Negro champion has a faculty for getting into a mess just before he is supposed to climb into a ring. For example, Jacobs recalls, he dislocated his sacro-iliac the day before the Ceferino Garcia match. Then he caught a bad cold before the Lou Ambers bout. And once he hurt his hands in training and couldn't go through with another scheduled scrap.

The bookies aren't afraid. They have made Henry the 1-3 shot to make a successful defense of his title the 15th time he has p in jeopardy.

And the followers of Ar apparently aren't very much cerned over the fact Henry "too good" to fight. At some 16,000 of them are ex to witness the battle, and some $50,000 for the fun.

Montanez doesn't seem either. He is in great shape to aim at Henry's mid-sec come out like a windmill, fo ing the formula that has ga him most of his notable ring umphs in a series wherein he lost only two of his last 54 f

Greenland Paces Leading Builders Team in All Star; Lions and Stars Battle Away.

Greenland of the Marion Builders & Supply shot a double century series in Tuesday night's All Star league battles, helping his club cling to a first place lead of three games. Greenland's totals were 200-239-228—667. Dugan Clothiers, tied for fifth place, hammered away at the maples for collective honors with a 1,042 round and 2,971 total.

Lions Club and The Marion Star keglers remained within a game of each other in the scrap for Office league laurels, both clubs making clean sweeps of their Wednesday matches. A 564 series by M. Thomas and C. Hostetler's 218 round helped the Stars to the heavy team total of 2,398. Only high score to escape the club was the collective single game rolled by the Marion Steam Shovel Engineers, who spilled 883 pins.

Big League Clubs Bid High for Detroit's Young McCoy

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — A half dozen or so big league baseball clubs are engaged in a sociable, little game of "cut-throat" these days and young Benjamin McCoy is very happy about it all.

The club that wins the game will get McCoy, 21, an infielder by trade, and McCoy probably will get close to $40,000 and a five-figure contract for the 1940 season.

McCoy's fortunate position was not of his own making. Detroit mishandled the youth in its farm operations and Commissioner K. M. Landis found out about it. The commissioner made a free agent of him along with 80 other Detroit hirelings.

So now McCoy sits by a new-installed telephone in his Grandville, Mich., home and carries on negotiations with would-be employers. The commissioner ruled none of the free agents could sign with any club until 15 days after his ruling.

But after Sunday McCoy can hook up with any major league club except Detroit, the Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Browns, Landis' edict banned Detroit from negotiating with any of its former players and barred the Cubs and Browns because they "meddled" with McCoy before he was made a free agent.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said yesterday he wanted and needed McCoy so badly that he would top any other offer. Pittsburgh was reported as offering McCoy $35,000 to sign, about $5,000 more than was offered by the New York Giants, Washington Senators and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Last year was his first with Detroit. He played 55 games at second base when Charley Gehringer was injured, batting .302, scoring 38 runs and getting 58 hits for 86 bases.

FORMER MARIONITE MASTER MARKSMAN

Harry W. Grossglaus, former Marion man who is now a special detective working out of the Stark county prosecuting attorney's office at Canton, holds 118th position among master pistol marksmen of the world, according to a list of rankings released recently at the National Rifle association headquarters at Washington, D. C. Word of his rank was received here by his mother, Mrs. Lula Grossglaus of 477 Windsor street. Mr. Grossglaus is a former state highway patrolman.

Al Hemming of Detroit, rated the 1939 champion, scored 95.6318. Mr. Grossglaus' score, taken from all matches competed in in the last year under auspices of the national association, was 92.5682, or 3.0434 under the champion's score.

The first 150 ranking marksmen include men from Hawaii, Mexico and France as well as the United States. Two other Ohioans are in the list, Ralph Marshall of Lima, with a score of 93.8148, and Raymond Bracken of Columbus, who scored 93.0989.

WOOSTER MOVES UP ON MUSKIE CAGERS

The Ohio Conference basketball race tightened today with Wooster moving within a half game of the leading Muskingum five.

The Scots kept their record spotless with a 59 to 45 victory over Ashland last night. It was their fifth straight triumph against six in a row for the Muskies.

At Ada, Ohio Northern walloped Bluffton, 54 to 29.

BLAST ROCKS TOWN IN HARDIN COUNTY

$15,000 Loss Reported in Gas Explosion at Alger.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Jan. 24—Damage of [illegible] $15,000 resulted Tuesday [illegible] explosion that rocked [illegible] village of Alger, northeast of Kenton, and then destroyed a modern filling station [illegible] with contents of equipment and stock.

Accumulation of gas, either from a natural gas line or a sewer [illegible], was blamed by Fire Chief [illegible] May of Alger for the explosion that for a time menaced the entire downtown business section of the Scioto marsh town. Robert Roberson, operator of the filling station who lives only a short distance from the fire [illegible] said he lost his own automobile, stock and equipment of the restaurant and other belongings. Floyd Huston, Alger produce dealer, counted his loss as a new truck and 100 bags of potatoes which he had placed in the station Monday night out of the way. Ewart Ellis of Van Wert, owner of the business place, said the loss in destruction of the 30 by 70 foot structure, was only partly insured and expressed doubt as to whether or not he would rebuild.

The fourth principal loser was the Rudduck Oil Co., which leased the station and had stocked it with accessories, oils, alcohol, kerosene, tires and complete equipment for lubrication, washing and other services.

Fire Chief May said that drums of kerosene and alcohol exploded momentarily during height of the fire but that luckily no one was drenched with the flaming oil. The crowd of spectators which grew steadily during the two-hour fight to bring the blaze under control, kept its distance because of the fear of injury from an explosion.

PLAN THURSDAY EVENT

Rev. W. K. Riggs, pastor, will be host at an oyster soup supper Thursday night at 7:30 at Fite Memorial Baptist church. The supper, which the pastor will prepare, will be in connection with a men's fellowship meeting and will be for all men of the church and all men in the community interested in the welfare of the church.

CATHERINE WOODS AUXILIARY MEETS

Mrs. Harold Clark was enrolled in the Catherine Woods auxiliary of First Presbyterian church at a meeting Tuesday night with Mrs. Alfred Exton of East Center street. Mrs. E. O. Smith was the assisting hostess. Following devotions by Miss Irene Reynolds the secretary, Mrs. L. O. Magill, read a letter from Miss Blanche Riley, home missionary at Doanville, O., thanking the auxiliary for its Christmas gift. Miss Nelle Loveland was appointed on the nominating committee for a three-year term. A recent letter from Miss Catherine Woods in China reported the recent bombings by Japanese planes and told of the shortage of writing paper. Mrs. Roscoe Rengert reviewed two chapters of the study book, "Homeland Harvest." The social hour was given over to a novel "going away" party and gift shower for Mrs. Maude Cookston who, with her husband, L. E. Cookston, will leave soon for a stay in the south. Refreshments were served.

MEETING HELD BY ADVISORY COUNCIL

Mrs. George Alber of South State street was hostess for a meeting of the advisory council of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon at her home. Miss Mabel Turney, faculty advisor, met with the members to discuss activities of the near future which will include the observance of Girl Reserve Week Feb. 23 to March 1. Mrs. Albert gave a report of a meeting of the district finance committee, of which she is a member, at Springfield recently. Tea and a social hour followed the business session.

CLOTHING STORE QUITS BUSINESS

F. L. Bradley To File Voluntary Bankruptcy Petition.

The store of the Bradley Clothing Co. at 121 South Main street closed yesterday and Edward J. Ruzzo, attorney for Frank L. Bradley, proprietor of the store, said voluntary bankruptcy proceedings will be started immediately.

Mr. Ruzzo said a voluntary petition in bankruptcy will be mailed to the federal court in Toledo late today for filing and that a federal court referee probably will appoint a trustee in bankruptcy within the next 10 days or two weeks.

The store was opened in August, 1936.

The petition lists assets of $9,665 and liabilities amounting to $18,253.16, Mr. Ruzzo said.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE REPORTED REPULSED

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Jan. 24—Soviet efforts to smash Finnish defenses northeast of Lake Lagoda by sheer strength of numbers again have been repulsed, a Finnish communique reported today.

The new Russian drive was said unofficially to have been ordered by Red leaders in an effort to save two Soviet divisions trapped near Aittojoki and in danger of starvation.

These reports said the famished Russians, caught while attempting to outflank the Mannerheim defense line, were eating horse meat.

Soviet air raids yesterday killed 21 civilians and injured 21 others in the Nurmes area, 40 miles from the central Finnish Russian frontier, the communique reported, charging that two hospitals were bombed there.

PIN IS SWALLOWED BY KENTON CHILD

KENTON, Jan. 24—Attendants in Antonio hospital tonight watched over 18-month-old William Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Davis, whose condition was regarded as critical after he swallowed a pin. X-ray reveal that the head of the pin is pointed downwards and is gradually moving through the child's intestines, the physician said. Treatments are being given in an effort to dislodge the pin and, if unsuccessful, an emergency operation may be performed.

TO MEET IN NEW ROOMS

First meeting of Betsy Ross auxiliary to Marion Camp No. 33, United Spanish War veterans, in the new headquarters at the V. F. W. hall on South Main street will be held Friday at 2:30. Until now the auxiliary has met at the Armory.

MIDWEEK SERVICE

"The Sermon on the Mount" will be the subject of study in the course, "Mastering the Story of the Master," to be conducted at the midweek service tonight at 7:30 at Central Christian church. The choir will rehearse at 8:30.

Rotarians Hear "Yankee Gaucho"

Members of the Marion Rotary club were taken on a visit to the strange and little known South American land of Patagonia yesterday in a talk by a man who spent seven years there among the mixed Spanish and Indian population.

The speaker was Joe Hector, the "Yankee Gaucho," who told among many other interesting experiences, his narrow escape from marriage to a giant Indian princess whose height was six feet six inches and weight around 270. He had won the undying gratitude of her and her family by rescuing a brother from threatened death by drowning and became the central figure of a ceremony which he found before its completion was intended to bring about his betrothal to the princess.

"It cost me $20 to get out of it," Mr. Hector related.

The princess, he said, was not unusual from the standpoint of physical heft and height, for giant proportions are general among the Patagonian Indians.

JOE HECTOR

A Land of Customs

The country was described as one where customs must be strictly observed, more so than laws, in fact. Mr. Hector said that when he first stepped foot on Patagonian soil he was arrested for presuming to seek relief from the heat by not wearing a hat and coat. He learned that this was in violation of both law and custom.

"It was a serious offense," he related, "yet strange as it may seem the arresting officer wore neither pants nor shoes."

Patagonia was described as a country where sheep raising is the major industry, in fact about the only one, where gauchoes roam the country and sleep on the ground. Although in area it compares to the combined land of several of our larger states, it has only 365,000 population.

In Costume

Mr. Hector appeared in the costume of a gaucho and exhibited several important articles in the equipment of these picturesque wanderers.

He spoke following the Rotary club's weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding and was introduced by George Planck, the club's program chairman.

A guest was Rev. J. B. Holloway, a member of the Ironton Rotary club who is here assisting in revival meetings at Trinity Baptist church.

VERNON P.-T. A. TO SEEK NEW MEMBERS

Mrs. Francis Hurst in Charge of Drive; Vesper Service Set.

Opening of a membership drive was announced last night at a meeting of the Vernon Heights school Parent-Teacher association. Mrs. Francis Hurst, membership chairman, announced the drive and also that membership blanks may be obtained from the following home room mothers: Room 7, Mrs. Miriam Cheney; Room 13, Mrs. Ray Reidenbaugh; Room 10, Mrs. L. E. Dill; Room 8, Mrs. Frances Bryans; Room 5, Mrs. Clifford Gorton; Room 4, Mrs. Hector S. Young; Room 9, Mrs. Leo Oberlander, and study hall, Mrs. James Beal.

Mrs. W. E. Orcutt, council president, announced a vesper service on Feb. 11 at 4 p. m. at Epworth Methodist church to commemorate the founding of the P.-T. A. The new reading circle books and a new large dictionary have been put in use at the school, Miss Una Ackley, librarian, reported. The meeting opened with devotions by Rev. J. A. Carriker of Forest Lawn Presbyterian church and group singing led by Rev. J. B. Swain.

Eastside Mothersinger chorus rehearsals on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the school, under the direction of Mrs. Stuart Shipman, were announced by the president, Mrs. J. A. Lott.

Mrs. E. H. Morgan, guest speaker, talked on "Places of Interest Around Paris." The program, in charge of Miss Mildred Wetterauer, included readings by Mrs. Orcutt, a violin selection by Helen Berry, accompanied at the piano by Joyce Pennock, and a piano number by Joyce Tron. Miss Lela Brookshire's room won the attendance award. The social hour was in charge of Miss Wetterauer's Room 6, and the following committee of eighth grade pupils' mothers, Mrs. H. R. Stauffer, chairman, Mrs. Bryans, Mrs. T. H. Clark, Mrs. R. A. Bender and Mrs. John Abbott.

FUNERAL SET FOR ACCIDENT VICTIM

Body of Donald McAllister to Be Brought Home Tonight.

Special to The Star

RICHWOOD, Jan. 24 — The body of Donald McAllister, 18, fatally injured in a motorcycle accident yesterday morning at Mt. Vernon, Ky., will be brought to Richwood some time late tonight. The funeral will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. at the Winter & Son funeral chapel, followed by burial in Bethlehem cemetery, south of Richwood.

His companion, Donald Cameron, 20, also of Richwood, today was given a 50-50 chance to live, according to the hospital at Berea, Ky. He suffered internal injuries, broken leg and arm and a broken jaw. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cameron, went to Berea yesterday.

The accident occurred when the motorcycle they were riding skidded on an icy street and crashed into a tree, it was reported today. Through a misunderstanding in a telephone call to Richwood yesterday, it was first reported that the motorcycle struck a train.

HOUSE CONTINUES ECONOMY DEBATE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—The house went back to its intermittent wrangle over federal economy today after giving the Dies committee authority to investigate un-American activities for another year.

The $1,032,000,000 appropriation bill for the treasury and postoffice departments was called up for debate, with economy advocates trying to add further cuts to the $11,401,000 reduction made by the appropriations committee.

The senate was in recess after spending most of yesterday arguing over a $200,000 fund for army land purchases in Puerto Rico. It will vote tomorrow on the $247,000,000 bill for emergency defense and neutrality expenses, including the Puerto Rican land.

SCOUTS AT GALION TO FILL OFFICES

FORECAST

did not become a big thing until the depression.

WPA is a federal government agency, set up as an emergency device to relieve local governments of some of the relief burden. It is for able-bodied men and women who are in need of relief. The federal government now pays about 75 per cent of the cost of projects and the local governments, or whatever local public group is sponsoring the work, pays the remaining 25 per cent.

Its advantages to the city are that more people can be given relief with less local money; that some work, usually of value, is performed in return; and that the merchants of the city benefit to a certain extent by the federal payrolls.

At present there are about 300 persons on WPA projects of the city. This number fluctuates almost daily, but officials estimate that about 300 will be the average load for 1940.

BROWDER PETITION FOR CONGRESS FILED

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—A 5,441-signature petition naming Earl Browder the Communist candidate for representative from the 14th congressional district was filed last night a few hours after he served notice of appeal from his passport fraud conviction.

New bail of $7,500—the same amount under which he had been free before he was sentenced to four years and fined $2,000—also was made.

SNOW

whipped over Virginia, bringing a 10 to 20-inch snow. Conditions were similar in parts of the Carolinas.

Ohio River Ice Gorge

With more floes drifting down to pile up every hour, an Ohio river ice gorge which started at Madison, Ind., 65 miles downstream, two days ago backed up steadily today past Carrollton, Ky., a distance of nearly 30 miles.

In that stretch, as in many other smaller ones for more than 100 miles, huge slabs created during the past two cold spells ground together and jammed up to create natural dams. In some spots the river was being forced to cut new channels.

While army engineers and dam attendants would hazard no guesses on further progress of the gorges, they indicated that there was no immediate danger of flood in the Cincinnati section.

For a long distance above and below Madison, six-inch slabs of ice formed a jagged surface across the river. Two steel barges were used to deflect the ice from four wooden barges and a dredge anchored there, but smaller boats were either already hauled out of the river or ground to match sticks.

The river at Cincinnati was half-full to full of moving ice, keeping navigation suspended in the worst tie-up since the winter of 1917-18. The stage rose below Cincinnati but upstream was generally below the normal pool level. Many of the movable dams could not be closed to maintain normal stages because of the ice conditions.

The Greene line announced cancellation of its annual packet excursion to the Mardi Gras, scheduled to start next week-end. Some 150 persons had booked passage.

LEADERS INSTALLED BY D. OF U. V. TENT

Mrs. Florence Miller and Mrs. Josephine Lusch, nieces of Mrs. Martha Connell, were the installing officers when she was installed as president of Harriet Beecher Stowe Tent No. 8, Daughters of Union Veterans, last night at the armory. Mrs. Miller presided and Mrs. Lusch served as guide.

Taking office with Mrs Connell were Mrs. Nellie Pennell, senior vice president; Mrs. Bessie Tanner, junior vice president; Mrs. Gail Montgomery, treasurer and press correspondent; Mrs. Lua Flocken, chaplain; Mrs. Mabel McCammon, patriotic instructor; Miss May Hain, council member No. 1; Mrs. Pearl Schwartz, council member No. 2; Mrs. Brettie Warne, council member No. 3; Mrs. Daisy Hollenbaugh, guard, and Mrs. Emma Wederitz, assistant guard.

The following committees were named: advisory, J. D. Hosier, commander of Cooper Post No. 117, G. A. R., Mrs. Montgomery and Miss Carrie Bain; floral, Mrs. Schwartz, Mrs. Warne and Mrs. Lusch; relief, Mrs. Pennell, Mrs. Hollenbaugh and Mrs. Wederitz; visiting, Mrs. Flocken, Mrs. Tanner and Mrs. McCammon; social, Mrs. Miller, Miss Hane and Mrs. Hollenbaugh. Aides for the year are Mrs. Schwartz and Mrs. McCammon. A past president's pin was presented Miss Hain, retiring president, by Mrs. McCammon. A communication was read from the department president, Mrs. Esther Schooler of Cincinnati. A number of calls were reported made during the month, and some relief work done by the members. A social hour with refreshments followed.

2 SCHOOLS START MID-YEAR EXAMS

Sophomore and junior pupils at Thomas A. Edison Junior High school and the sophomores, juniors and seniors at Harding High school today entered the throes of mid-year examinations. At both schools only those pupils with straight "A" grades or two "A's" and a "B" in any subject were excused from an examination.

The Edison schedule follows: this morning, English I and II; this afternoon, geography, Caesar, French I, biology and mechanical drawing II; Thursday morning, world history, physics, home economics II; Thursday afternoon, plane and solid geometry, industrial arts II and economics. Examinations in bookkeeping I and II, stenography and journalism were given in the regular class periods on Tuesday.

FOES OF WAGNER ACT ATTACKED BY MADDEN

U. S. C. of C. and Manufacturers' Group Named.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24—Singling out the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, J. Warren Madden, chairman of the national relations board, last night termed "constant agitation" by Wagner act foes a "menace to public order."

"The national labor board relations act has fulfilled its avowed purpose and has in addition produced by-products which are of great social advantage," Madden said in a message to a conference of the United Christian Council for Democracy. "Yet there is constant agitation for its repeal or emasculation.

"Most of this agitation originates with organizations such as the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce which seem to think that they cannot keep their members paying dues unless, like other agitators they condemn, they paint for them pictures of bogey man who will arise to destroy them if they stop supporting the agitators.

"I do not say that these organizations do not have useful work to do or do not do useful work along some lines. I do say that their constant agitation of a class struggle, by their attempts to deprive American workmen of rights which millions now enjoy, is a menace to public order."

Madden is ill in Washington and his address was read by Malcolm Ross, director of publications for the NLRB.

BROTHER, SISTER MARRIAGE BROKEN

Couple Learn of Kinship After Ceremony.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24—Two love-struck young newlyweds went their separate ways today, told in court they evidently were brother and sister and so never before the law could be man and wife.

LeRoy Williamson, 20, and Virginia Williamson, 18, married here Jan. 6, sat holding hands yesterday as Juvenile Judge Wilfred Bradshaw told them records showed they were "at least half-brother and half-sister" and the law could not recognize their union.

The judge said, though, he would not hand down his final ruling until tomorrow.

Virginia, an expectant mother, sobbed often. Her husband, himself nervously turning hat in hands, tried to comfort her.

They are wards of the court.

Mrs. Crystal Clair Harker of Urbana, Ill., testified both were born to her sister, Mrs. Helen Williamson, then unmarried.

The girl, under the name of Virginia Wolfe, was adopted by an Indianapolis family. The boy went with his mother to Michigan City, where she died in 1924. He returned here last April.

His aunt's testimony drove home to him the fact he had sought to disprove by studying conflicting birth records—that he and the girl he loved were blood kin.

UNION

A committee was appointed to work with a committee of members of Buckeye Lodge No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles, in an attempt to obtain an increase in state old age pensions from $30 to $40 a month. The increase is being sponsored by Eagles lodges and labor unions throughout the state. The committee of the Central Labor Union is composed of William Armbruster, chairman, Fred Williams, James Sons and Merle Mason.

Plans also were discussed for preparing a Buyer's Guide and for making a study of the federal social security law. Work on the Buyer's Guide will be in charge of a committee headed by C. W. Davidson while the social security study will be in charge of the union's education and legislative committees.

STEEL RATE DROP SEEN AS LIKELY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—Further curtailment of steel making operations is "inevitable" unless new business increases, "Iron Age" said today in a weekly survey.

Ingot production for the current week was estimated at 32 per cent of capacity, a decline of three points from the preceding week.

"Shipments are still heavy and are far exceeding the volume of incoming orders, which range from a probable low point of about 35 per cent of shipments in one important instance to as much as 55 to 60 per cent with other companies," the review declared.

"Current production is largely sustained by backlog tonnage which is rapidly diminishing," said the magazine.

TWO AT ALTAR IN REVIVAL SERVICE

Two persons responded to the altar call at the pre-revival prayer meeting last night at Emmanuel Baptist church. Howard Hughes, leader, read the second chapter of the Epistle of James for the scripture lesson, emphasizing the thought that faith without work is dead. Mr. and Mrs. Troy Conley, who sang several selections last night, will sing again tonight. Charles Schaber will lead the meeting tonight at 7:30. Warren Schaber and the junior choir will sing "He Is Mine," with Mr. Schaber as lead soloist. Evangelist Hughes will lead the 7-day night meeting.

JOHN L. LEWIS ASSAILS M'NUTT

John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, is shown just before he mounted the rostrum at the opening at the United Mine Workers Jubilee convention in Columbus, O., to call Paul V. Trade Totaling Nearly 4 Billions Involved in U. S. Pact With Japan

It's More Vital To Japs Than to Us. So We're Hoping To Hear Bid for Agreement.

(This is the last of two stories on Japanese-American commercial relations.)

By ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Trade approaching $4,000,000,000 a year will move from under the protective mantle of the United States-Japanese commercial treaty when the pact expires Friday.

Japan is America's third largest customer, coming immediately after the United Kingdom and Canada. The United States is Japan's largest buyer of important exports like raw silk, textiles, canned goods, tea, chinaware, novelties and toys.

In 1938 United States exports to Japan were $239,620,000. Imports from Japan $126,820,000.

Initial indications are that this big trade will not be immediately or automatically cut into by the lapse of the treaty which the United States abrogated. But this does not mean that the administration is not thinking over possible steps which may be taken to cut down the flow from the United States to Japan of supplies useful in prosecuting the war in China.

Basic Difference

The fundamental difference between United States exports to Japan and Japanese exports to the United States is this—American goods are essential to Japan, but Japanese goods are not vitally essential to the United States.

Over 70 per cent of United States exports to Japan are materials needed for war purposes—$171,574,167 of the $239,620,000. The biggest American export is of pig iron, scrap iron and steel, etc., totalling $86,038,000. Next comes raw cotton, cotton linters, etc., at $53,569,000; crude oil, gasoline, kerosene, etc., at $51,809,000, and machinery, automobiles and auto and airplane parts at $49,019,000. Most of these four items are required for war.

On the other hand, raw silk constitutes by far Japan's largest export to the United States—$83,651,000 in 1938 — after which comes cotton cloth and other textiles at $14,608,000.

Admittedly, shutting off the exports of Japanese silk to the United States would affect thousands of workmen and scores of millions of dollars in wages here. It would be felt not only in the silk textile industry but in other branches of American economic life which have to do with that industry. But silk is not essential to the United States in the sense that iron and steel, petroleum and cotton are to Japan.

Range of Purchases

On percentages, here is the share of Japanese total imports which she buys from the United States: copper, 82.9 per cent; automobiles and parts, 81.2 per cent; all oils, 60.5 per cent; pig iron, 41.6 per cent; other iron, 58.7 per cent; machinery and engines, 49.5 per cent, and zinc, 20.4 per cent. Japanese imports of scrap iron and steel have shown striking increases in the last few years.

Advocates of an embargo on the export of American products to Japan believe that if American petroleum can be kept from Nippon, Japanese planes will be prevented from bombing Chinese cities and troops; that if American iron and steel and scrap can be kept from Japan, shells and cannon can not be fabricated to subdue China.

Some officials hope that Japan, realizing her economic dependence on the United States, will not let the matter reach the stage of an embargo, but will seek an agreement with the United States to end their difficulties in the Far East.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Bad Breath

What are the causes of bad breath?

(1) Decaying food particles in the mouth cavity. (2) Disease within the mouth cavity, i.e., decaying tooth, tonsil or pyorrhea. (3) Volatile substances which are absorbed from the stomach (garlic, onions) get into the blood stream, and which are excreted through the lungs; they may simply seep up from the stomach. (4) Nasal disease—ozena.

A method has been described by research workers by which it is possible to determine both the intensity of odors and their source; as to whether they come from the lungs, the nose or the mouth. Certain investigators believe that food particles play a relatively insignificant part. It is true, however, that onion and garlic chewed, but not swallowed, may be detected by chemical means from 60 to 72 hours after mastication. When garlic or onion is swallowed in capsule form (so that they leave no trace in the mouth), it can be detected for a considerably longer period.

Early morning—i.e., waking—bad breath is probably due to nothing more than the stagnation of mouth fluids and desquamated epithelium in the mouth.

Is a mustard poultice of any real virtue or is it simply superstition?

Two Japanese investigators, Hiro and Yamanda, impressed with the fact that mustard packs and mustard poultices had considerable therapeutic value, tried to find out whether this was due simply to the sense of heat and blood congestion that occurred. They took rabbits and shaved patches of hair so as to expose the skin and applied concentrated mustard packs for five minutes' duration. They found that the white blood cells were increased by this procedure.

It is known that the white blood cells have a favorable effect in combatting infection. In short, the mustard poultice of our grandmothers is an effective agent for combatting infection, not only because it creates comfort but because it also stimulates the forces of immunity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H.J.L.: "I found this statement in an article in a current magazine, 'Hot pipe stems may bring on cancer of the lips and mineral oil used in textile trades will cause cotton spinner's cancer.' The article made us wonder if there is any evidence to show that the use of mineral oil as a laxative over a long period of time will cause cancer."

Answer — Statements such as the one quoted make me particularly impatient. I do not think they have any place in a discussion of cancer for the general public. The duty of the health propagandist for the layman is certainly to avoid controversial subjects, especially those that arouse fear. "I do not want to scare you to death; I want to scare you to life" is a good slogan for cancer advice recently proposed, I do not recall by whom. In other words, the people should have enough information to make them realize that cancer is a local disease, and that when certain signs appear, if taken in time, cancer can be completely removed. The question of the relation of cancer to irritation and chemical irritants is highly controversial. For every person who has a cancer of the lip and who has been using a hot pipe stem, there are [illegible] who have never had [illegible] their mouth [illegible] cancer.

PAY INCREASE MADE BY WESTINGHOUSE

12 Per Cent Upward Adjustment Ordered for 48,500.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. announced today that wages and salaries of all employes would be adjusted upward 12 per cent from base rates this month in accordance with the company's wage and salary plan.

The plan, in operation more than three years, provides that wages and salaries be adjusted upward or downward each month within certain limits as the state of the company's business indicates.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, said that though the average earnings of the company for the preceding three months, the wages paid are part of the cost of production and are not taken from accrued earnings.

Net earnings for the last three months were $1,781,552, of which $1,383,840 was earned in October, $1,822,117 in November and $1,598,595 in December. Last month the adjusted compensation to all employes was 10 per cent above base rates.

Approximately 48,500 employes will receive this month's adjusted compensation in the company's 57 manufacturing and service plants throughout the country and in hundreds of sales and service offices.

markets. There still exists the same national unhappiness that i faced seven years ago."

Autonomy for districts and special assessments were considered the only debatable subjects as the convention took up the 82-page officers' report.

Despite these questions, an informed source predicted the convention would approve the report in full, indorsing proposed extensive changes in the nation's social security system.

The U. M. W. officers may be subjected to considerable questioning about how they intend to spend the $800,000 which a proposed special assessment of $2 on each working member is estimated to raise.

The officers explained that the funds were needed to fight anti-labor and anti-social legislation and to "carry on in the best interests of our membership in particular."

The U. M. W. put up about $600,000 for the 1936 Democratic campaign.

As the mine workers entered the second day of their two-week meeting, Secretary - Treasurer Thomas Kennedy reported that the attendance would exceed 2,400 delegates, topping the 1919 record of 2,250.

M'Nutt Answers Lewis Blast

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 — Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, has replied to criticism from John L. Lewis by saying that he had "no apology to offer" for his labor record as governor of Indiana.

Lewis, addressing the United Mine Workers convention in Columbus, referred to McNutt's use of state troops during a labor dispute in Terre Haute in 1935. He termed McNutt "a political adventurer" and said the latter was accompanied by a "motely crew of two per cent beginners which he hoped would be able to buy enough votes to make him president of the United States."

McNutt said in a statement that his use of troops in "the tragedy of the Terre Haute strike" was "what I believe any chief executive, sworn to uphold law and order, could not escape doing."

"I have no apology to offer. I stand on the record."

Wheeler Sees Third Election Difficult

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, declared here today that it "would be extremely difficult" for the Democratic party to reelect President Roosevelt if he won the party nomination for a third term.

Wheeler, mentioned as a possible 1940 Democratic nominee made this statement after expressing surprise at the blunt assertion of John L. Lewis, C.I.O. leader, that Roosevelt's nomination would result in "ignominious defeat."

The senator disputed a claim by Lewis that the Democratic party and the Roosevelt administration had not "kept faith with labor."

"The Democratic party and President Roosevelt," he said, "have done more for organized labor in recent years than any administration in the history of the country."

Commenting on Lewis' term for Mr. Roosevelt, he said he had "always been opposed to a third term."

"Notwithstanding President Roosevelt's great personal popularity, I think it would be extremely difficult to elect anyone for a third term," he declared.

Lewis' statement about the possibility of President Roosevelt's reelection surprised political Washington with its abrupt declaiveness despite evidences of coolness between the labor leader and the White House in recent months.

Political leaders were quick to see in the Lewis maneuver, including his attack on administration labor policies, a bid for an influential place in Democratic councils with a view to helping shape party policy and select its presidential nominee.

Nonetheless his speech served to complicate, at least for the time, the political outlook as far as labor is concerned. Some of his own C.I.O. organizations already have indorsed another term for Mr. Roosevelt.

Whether Lewis' first choice for the Democratic standard-bearer might be Senator Wheeler has been a subject of speculation ever since the C.I.O. leader several weeks ago invited the Montana senator to address the Columbus convention. Lewis, however, has made no announcement of intentions in that direction.

Germans Sought on Jap Boat by Strange Warship

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU, Jan. 24—Capt. S. Ito of the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru said on arrival here today that an unidentified warship ordered his ship to halt at 10:35 p. m. Jan. 18, and asked its destination and nationality by blinker signals from a distance of two miles.

The Tatuta was given authority to proceed at 11:05, Ito said. The incident occurred when the Tatuta was 170 miles out of San Francisco.

Ito said he was unable to identify the warship because of darkness. The ship asked whether the Tatuta carried any Germans, and Ito said he replied that five German civilians were board, two of them women.

Reservations had been made for 312 crew members of the scuttled Nazi liner Columbus, but were cancelled without explanation just before the Tatuta left San Francisco Jan. 18. The Columbus crew is still in San Francisco, housed at the Angel Island immigration station.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN BOMBER CRASH

Two Escape As Army Plane Hits Mountain.

By The Associated Press

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Jan. 24—Four men are dead in the crash of an army bomber, trapped but a few minutes away from the safety of its base by a raging storm which played havoc with many army air maneuvers.

Two crewmen aboard the Douglas B-18-A escaped in parachutes as the big craft went into a spin and crashed into a hillside seven miles from here late yesterday. They are Sergeant Cecil C. Purvis of Glennville, Ga., and Private Frank Carroll, Hyde Park, Mass.

"We were flying high—about 8,000 feet, I guess—when the motors missed and the ship went into a spin," said Carroll, "and all were entered out.

"Something apparently was wrong with the emergency door, and only two of us were able to get out."

Army records listed the victims as Lieut. Raymond W. Sund, Nashwauk, Minn., pilot; First Lieut. Benjamin O. Holloway, Columbus, O.; Sergeant Gerald D. Wilcox, Bennett, Ia., and Private Leonard E. Riley, Wichita Falls, Tex.

STOCKS AHEAD IN MILD RALLY

Steels and Aircrafts Take Lead As List Moves Upward Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — The stock market shook off its drowsiness sufficiently today to get into a mild rallying stride.

Steels and aircrafts assumed the lead on the upturn and some moved up for gains of a point or so.

Standing out on the advance were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, American Smelting, Douglas Aircraft, American Airlines, Montgomery Ward, Chrysler and Westinghouse.

In the curb, gains of fractions to more than a point appeared in Colt's Patent Fire Arms, Gulf Oil, Ohio Brass "B" and National Oil Products.

Cotton joined the recovery trend but commodities generally were uneven. Bonds looked up with the share list.

Brokers said the advance seemed to get its strength mainly from an improved "technical" situation as result of the new year fall in prices in the first half of January.

Wall Street interest in the political outlook warmed up on the statement of John L. Lewis, C.I.O. leader, that a third-term candidacy for President Roosevelt would result in defeat.

LEGAL NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 8030 of the General Code of Ohio, the undersigned, surviving partner of the late partnership firm of W. & J. Guy, has filed bond in the Probate Court of Marion County, Ohio, which has been approved by said Court, for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said partnership and for the performance of all contracts for which said partnership was or is liable.

Marion, Ohio, January 23, 1940.
WILLIAM H. GUY,
Surviving Partner.
Case No. 13974.

LEGAL NOTICE

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, MARION COUNTY, OHIO

Elmer Cox, Plaintiff, vs. F. H. Wilson, Lawnsdale, California, Defendant.

F. H. Wilson, who resides at Lawnsdale, in the State of California, will take notice that on the 15th day of January, 1940, the plaintiff Elmer Cox, filed his petition against him in the Court of Common Pleas of Marion County, Ohio, the same being Cause No. 26147 in said Court, for judgment on a Promissory Note, and at the same time filed an Affidavit in Attachment to attach the undivided one-third (⅓) interest of the defendant, F. H. Wilson, in the following described premises, to-wit:

Situate in the County of Marion, Township of Tully, and State of Ohio, and bounded and described as follows:

Being the Southeast quarter (¼) of Section No. 26, Township Number 4, and Range Number 17, and the South one-half of fractional section 25, Township 4, and Range 17, excepting from the two above described tracts the following tracts:

(a) being forty (40) acres on the West side of the first above described tract and being the premises formerly sold to Sarah E. Noble.

(b) A parcel of land situate in the Southeast quarter of Section 26, Township 4, and Range 17, and described as follows: Commencing 14.60 perches East of the quarter section post on the South side of said section, township, and range aforesaid, and running thence North 89 degrees East 26.5 perches; thence South 16.65 perches to the aforesaid line; thence on said section line to the place of beginning, containing 1.65 acres of land.

(c) Being part of the Southeast quarter of Section 26, Township 4, and Range 17, and beginning at the center of the State Road on the West side of said quarter section; running South 22 rods; thence East 18 rods; thence North parallel with the West line 57 rods and twelve (12) feet; thence back to the place of beginning, containing twelve (12) acres, be the same more or less.

(d) Beginning at the Southeast corner of said fractional Section 25 on the Range and County line; thence running North 1 degrees East along said line 10.20 poles to the south end of the bridge over the middle branch of Whetstone Creek where it intersects said Range line; thence South 64 degrees West 83.10 poles to a black walnut tree 15 inches in diameter, which is made a corner; thence South 24½ degrees West 35.76 poles to a post on the south line of said Section 26; thence South 89 degrees 15 minutes East along the South line of said Section 26 and 25 to the place of beginning, containing 24.12 acres of land, according to plat and survey made by J. T. Buck, June 5th, 1905," and containing in the premises hereby conveyed one hundred and thirty-one and fifty-one one-hundredths (131.51) acres of land.

The above exceptions containing in all seventy-eight and 05/100 (78.05) acres of land, and leaving to be transferred hereby one hundred and fifty-three and seventy-five one-hundredths (116.75) acres of land, be the same more or less.

The prayer of said petition is for judgment on said note, and plaintiff seeks by attachment to subject the property of the defendant to the satisfaction of plaintiff's claim. Said defendant is required to answer said petition on the 26th day of March, 1940, or judgment will be taken against him.

GEORGE H. DAVIES,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a resolution of the council of the City of Marion, Ohio, passed on December 26th, 1939, there will be submitted to a vote of the electors of said city of Marion, Ohio, at a special election to be held in the city of Marion, Ohio, at the regular places of voting thereto-in, on Tuesday the 30th day of January, 1940, the question of a special levy in the amount of one and three tenths (1.3) mills on each one dollar valuation, of said city of Marion, Ohio, for the purpose of providing funds for matching of state grants for poor relief for the years of 1939 and 1940. The polling places will be open from 6:30 A. M. until 6:30 P. M. of said election day. The following is the form of ballot:

"An additional levy for the benefit of the city of Marion, O., for the purpose of matching state grants for poor relief for the years of 1939 and 1940, at a rate not to exceed one and three tenths (1.3) mills for each dollar valuation, which amounts to thirteen cents for each hundred dollars valuation, or one dollar and thirty cents for each thousand dollar valuation, for and during the years of 1939 and 1940."

WHEAT RECOVERS EARLY PRICE LOSS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — After a session of nervous fluctuations, the wheat market developed a definite recovery trend today with price gains of around a cent a bushel lifting May contracts above $1.

Prospects of cold weather over much of the grain belt, despite evidence of good snow covering in most winter wheat territory, accounted for part of the strength. Higher security and cotton prices also attracted attention. Mills were reported active in domestic as well as Canadian markets.

Wheat closed ⅝-1⅛ cents higher than yesterday, May $1.00⅛-¼, July 97⅞-¾; corn ⅜-½ up, May and July 57¾-⅞; oats ⅛-⅜ higher.

METHODISTS BEATEN IN Y LOOP GAME

Unbeaten Record Marred by Trinity Baptists, 29-23.

Sunday school basketball teams battled through a stormy league session Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A.

Epworth Methodists, previously unbeaten, suffered a 29-23 setback that bumped them into a two-way tie for the top spot with their conquerors, Trinity Baptist.

Another scheduled duel between United Brethren and Wesley ended in "no contest" when Referee Dick Brandt halted it three minutes short of the finish mark because of "unnecessary roughness and unsportsmanlike conduct." Wesley was leading, 25-9, when the tilt was stopped.

In other games Fite Memorial downed Oakland Evangelical, 45-40, and Prospect Street Methodists walloped Forest Law, 40-16. The tandings and summaries follow:

SON OF FORMER MARIONITE KILLED

Charles F. Terpany Dies in West; Burial To Be Made Here.

Word was received here today by relatives of the accidental death in California of Charles F. Terpany, about 25, son of Fred and Bertha Zimmerman Terpany of Elgin, Ore., former Marion county residents. The nature of the accident was not learned but relatives were informed that members of the family left California today to bring the body to Marion by train. Mr. and Mrs. Terpany left Marion a number of years ago. Their son was enrolled at a California school. In addition to the parents he is survived by a sister, Miss Annabelle Terpany of Waterloo, Ia. The youth is a nephew of Mrs. Alice Zimmerman of 230 West Columbia street.

K. OF C. MEMBERS HEAR RECRUITER

T. E. Smith, machinist's mate, first class, in charge of the local navy recruiting sub-station was a guest speaker at a meeting of Marion Council No. 871, Knights of Columbus, last night. The program included showing of motion pictures of navy life. T. E. Andrews, district deputy, gave a report of a meeting with state officers in Columbus over the week-end when plans for the forthcoming state convention to be held here in May were discussed. Lunch followed the business session.

FILM'S SEAT SALE DATE SCHEDULED

In response to numerous telephone calls to the theater last night, Mr. Planck said today that the film here will be exactly as shown at the premier in Atlanta, Ga., and will run the full three hours and 47 minutes.

Boston Wool

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Jan. 24—Demand was very slow and prices were irregular in domestic wools in the Boston market today. Very little business was being transacted in fine and half-blood grades. Scattered sales were closed on three-eighths and quarter-blood territory wools. Combing territory wools of these grades were moving at 81 to 82 cents, scoured basis, for three-eighths blood and 72 to 76 cents for quarter-blood. Offerings on country-packed, three-eighths and quarter-blood mixed lots of bright fleeces were showing an increase at prices ranging 41 to 42 cents, in the grease, delivered here.

Wheat Under Federal Loans Creates New Puzzle for Dealers to Solve

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — Wheat worth more than $150,000,000, pawned to the world's most famous lender of money, Uncle Sam, loomed today as a bulky asset on the books of thousands of farm producers and as an intricate puzzle to many dealers and processors in the grain trade.

The "pawn broker" wants his money back, and grain men think he will get it, with interest. But what's to become of the collateral thus "thawed"? they ask. Loans may be called at the end of the next two or three months.

At present there's a profit for all concerned, thanks to war in Europe and crop damage in Argentina and the domestic southwest—factors which have lifted wheat prices to around $1 a bushel.

Price Rise Helps

At one time farmers had approximately 166,000,000 bushels of wheat under lock and key, obtaining 4 per cent interest loans from the government or banks in their communities. Inasmuch as these loans were based at an average rate of about 61 cents, the price rise more than takes care of interest and carrying charges, grain men said.

They estimated that producers have redeemed perhaps 4,000,000 bushels in the past few weeks. There were more than 161,000,000 bushels under loan on Jan. 1.

The Commodity Credit Corp. announced loans on 3,500,000 bushels of 1938 wheat would not be extended beyond March 31 and that it does not contemplate extending any loans on 1939 grain maturing April 30 except 25,000,000 bushels on farms in the spring wheat zone. Grain men said that if this plan were not changed, approximately 17 per cent of the 1939 crop which has been held off the market to stabilize prices would be "freed" a few weeks prior to the 1940 harvest.

Likely To Redeem

They assumed that if present paper profits are not seriously reduced by lower prices farmers would elect to redeem wheat rather than turn it over to the government in default of loans. This would not necessarily mean that the redeemed wheat would be put on the market, because it could be held or even pledged as collateral again on private loans, they said.

The situation now developing illustrates what grain men called the "last seasonal cycle" in operation of the ever-normal granary program, balance wheel of the nation's agricultural demand and supply machinery. The program enables farmers to hold grain off market during the usual period of heavy selling after harvest and to sell it later in orderly manner when commercial stocks are lowest.
